Northeast Chicken Parts

Thursday, September 12, 1991

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS. FEDERAL-STATE Trucklot buying interest was light to fair and generally cautious. Inquiry for the adequate and fairly well balanced supply of boneless skinless breasts had slowed. Supplies of whole breasts were adequate; trading was limited as buyers and sellers differed on values. Leg items were in heaviest supply for a generally lackluster demand. Wings were in demand for both immediate and early next week and supplies were no more than adequate.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, September 11, 1991

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Prices for larger sizes were unchanged, mediums were unchanged to lower in the Middle Atlantic States, lower in the Midwest, and unchanged in the West. The trade sentiment was about steady on the larger sizes, barely steady to weak on mediums; however, an unsettled and cautious undertone was showing in some areas. Demand was irregular and ranged slow to good with the best movement in areas where retail features were in progress. Supplies were generally adequate with mediums readily available at some locations.

Sept. 10, 1991

Prices were unchanged under a steady market tone except the whole egg market strengthened and was fully steady with higher mostly prices. Most inquiry focused on whole eggs with increased confidence initiated by the recent announcement of a USDA purchase program. The balance of items received steady, and light to fair inquiry. Floor stocks were adequate. Breaking stock was available.

2 NO CHARGE FORAGE & NITRATE TESTING

Because of drought conditions in many local areas, it may be necessary to check forages more closely for high levels of nitrates. To help ease the financial burden of this added testing, Pennfield will not charge their customers or prospects for nitrate tests run between now and December 31, 1991.

As usual — there is no charge for normal forage tests and the turnaround time at the Pennfield Lab in Lancaster, PA is 48 HOURS.

Forage mailer kits are available at no charge, postage is paid by Pennfield, and results can be mailed direct to your farm.

35 More Happy Returns

On September 21, the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program will celebrate its 35th anniversary at the State Dairy Princess Pageant to be held at the Penn Harris Convention Center in Camp Hill. All former state dairy princesses and milk maids have been invited back for a celebration.

The dairy princess program has a long history that dates back to 1956 when the Miss Milk Maid Contest was initiated by the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers. Milk maids were chosen according to Pennsylvania milk marketing areas. Later the Pennsylvania Holstein Association assumed sponsorship of the program, and from 1979 through 1983, Atlantic Dairy Association served as coordinator of the princess program, working together with the six district coordinators and the county promotional committees.

In 1983, for the purpose of providing a more uniform program, which could serve all areas of Pennsylvania, the district coordinators established the present Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc.

The program reaches thousands of consumers. This year, 40 princesses and 35 alternates have had 1,762 school promotions; 695 store/mall promotions; 512 non-farm meetings; 387 farm meetings and 759 special events. One-hundred forty-one thousand nine hundred ninety-one recipe brochures were distributed, along with 270,588 other promotional items. The princesses traveled 141,717 miles to do these promotions.

We extend our congratulations to the many people over the years who have helped make the dairy princess program successful. And on this 35th anniversary, we extend best wishes for 35 more happy returns.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Evaluate Bank Accounts

During the past several months, many banks have changed their fee structures, interest rates, and the way interest is calculated on accounts. There now are many differences between banks. Based on these changes and differences, you might want to do some comparison shopping for your banking needs. Some items to check are:

- Interest not being paid on the total balance in a savings account.
- Interest in large-balance money accounts are lower than other types of accounts.
- Compare minimum balances for all types of accounts.
- How interest is calculated, i.e. compounded daily, monthly, quarterly, or annually.
- If you qualify for special accounts based on age that waive many of these fees.

Finally, if you have a savings program for children, you might want to consider other savings alternatives such as U.S. Savings Bonds or certificates of deposit — especially if the bank is not paying interest on the first $200 deposited in the savings account.

Money management is an important part of farming today. Selecting the right bank to fit your money needs will help you increase your income.

Avoid Residues In Food

It is every farmer's responsibility to make sure the food they produce does not contain residues of pesticides and drugs.

To avoid residues, it is important labels are read and all instructions are followed. When treating cows, make sure they are easily identified, milked last, and the milk properly disposed.

When using pesticides, especially insecticides, make sure the chemical is cleared for the animals or crop you are using it on. Do not use products that are no longer allowed. Compounds with a long life could render a building or field unavailable for use for a long time.

Food safety is a major concern among consumers. The adverse publicity and resulting decline in consumer purchases as a result of improper chemical use is devastating to a commodity. So, protect your markets and use all chemicals and drugs properly.

Address Dairy Farm Costs

Dairy farmers are experiencing the same economic hardships the egg producers experienced several years ago. The same marketing issues, declining consumption, and reverse pricing schedules are similar to both industries.

As agricultural leaders are exploring new ways to improve marketing opportunities, farmers need to develop crisis or survival management strategies. Luxury spending is hard to eliminate but the good managers will make the tough decisions.

You need to look at culling unprofitable cows. This could also reduce your labor and feed costs. Do not buy new equipment. Spend more time fixing equipment and practicing preventative maintenance to make equipment last longer.

Feed for profitable production instead of maximum production. Cut expenses by eliminating items you are not using, i.e. magazines not being read, excess heifers, and rented land. Concentrate on improving the productive life of your cows and reducing the number of replacement heifers needed.

Talk with your banker and explore ways to restructure your loan payments. One alternative is look for a lower interest rate and only pay interest. Be very cautious in assuming more debt. Instead, work on increasing your net worth in the business.

To make wise cost-cutting decisions, you must first set goals for your operation. These goals would include pounds of milk per man, culling rate, debt per cow, and cost to produce a hundredweight of milk.

Editor:

There have been recent comments in various publications that imply that Farmland Dairies opposes efforts to raise dairy farmer income. Nothing could be further from the truth. As New York Governor Al Smith would say, "Let's look at the record."

To criticize an American for trying to uphold the constitution is an unfortunate stance. I would hope that no one would abandon the precepts of our Founding Fathers when these precepts get in the way of personal profit.

I believe that merely raising the price of Class I milk, as New York has just done, will, in the long run,

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IF YOU HAVE ANY WORD
September 15, 1991

Background Scripture: Acts 3:1-3, 13-52.

Devotional Reading: Galatians 3:10-14, 21-29.

We sometimes call it "being in the right place at the right time," yet I can't help seeing behind some of these events something more profound than luck o chance. Maybe what we see as "luck" is really God working incognito.

We can see something of this at work at the beginning of Acts 13. The writer tells us that at the church in Antioch "there were prophets and teachers" (13:1). Barnabas, Simeon called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen from the court of Herod, and Saul. Here, Saul is just one of five workers in the Antiochean church and the writer of Acts lists him simply as "and Saul."

SAUL BECOMES PAUL

But, "While they were worshipping the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, 'Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them'." (13:2). Note that Barnabas is still named first. So they set out for Cyprus where something unexpected happened: challenged by a magician, it is Saul, not Barnabas, who makes a ringing defense of their work. "...Saul, who is also called Paul" (13:9), and from this point on in Acts he is referred to solely as Paul.

When he and Barnabas reach Antioch of Pisidia (a different Antioch), they attend the synagogue and one of the officials says, "Brethren, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, say it" (13:15). Once again, it is Paul who rises to the occasion and preaches a powerful sermon, calling his hearers to repent and receive Jesus Christ as Lord.

THROUGH THIS MAN

There are not many times that someone gives us an invitation like that, but perhaps there are more opportunities than we realize. We don't have to preach a sermon like Paul. Note that he ends with these words: "Let it be known to you therefore, brethren, that through this man forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you, and by him everyone that believes is freed from everything from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses" (13:38).

In our own ways and our own words we, too, can witness to the love of God in Christ that sets us free as nothing else can.

Only Farm Credit Has Loan Officers Who Were Trained In The Field.

While you were growing up on the farm going to 4-H, FFA, maybe even AG school, do you know what your Farm Credit loan officer was doing?

Same thing.

Not many bankers can say that.

True, they can make loans nine ways to Sunday. But, now your Farm Credit loan officer can, too. Over the last few years our people have gone through extensive training at making every kind of farm loan imaginable. Now a Farm Credit loan officer can give you the lowdown on rates, options and creative financing as well as any city banker can.

And around here, our Farm Credit loan officers have the power of approval that's equal to most bank presidents.

So the next time you need to get a farm loan, think about this for just a moment.

Then let one of our Farm Credit loan officers prove to you what we've been saying all along.

That bankers can't be farmers.

But farmers can be bankers.

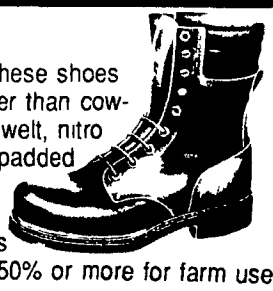
HORSEHIDE

GENUINE HORSEHIDE

Barnyard Acid Resistant American Made



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

New High Total Set At Indiana Co. Fair Sale

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

A new high gross value was set last week at the 29th annual Junior Livestock Sale at the Indiana County Fair.

The 125 different buyers paid $101,873.15 for the 226 head of hogs, lambs, and beef. The previous high gross total was $97,050.80 set in 1990.

The 133 head of market hogs, weighing 30,795 pounds, brought an average price per pound with champions of $1.33. The average price per pound without champions was $1.27.

The 63 market lambs, weighing 6,629 pounds, were sold for an average price of $2.13 per pound with champions. The average price per pound without champions was $1.94.

Thirty head of market steers, weighing 35,515, brought an average of $1.13 per pound including champions. Excluding champions the average price was $0.99.

Steve Neal's grand champion market hog was bought by C.L. Ruffner and Sons of Indiana for $7.00 per pound (for a total value of $1,750).

Emmett McMillen's reserve grand champion market hog was bought by Luther Ford Sales of Homer City for $3.50 per pound ($805).

David Elkin's grand champion pork carcass was bought by Saltsburg Shop 'N Save for $3.50 per pound ($588).

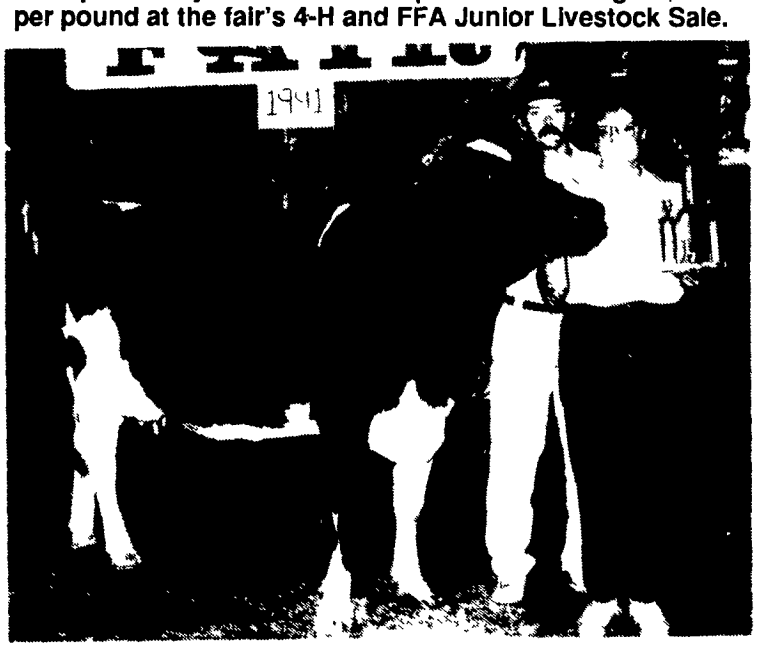
Tim Bishop's reserve grand champion market steer was bought by Indiana Farmers' Livestock Market of Homer City for $1.75 per pound ($2,170.60).

Stephen Neal of Homer City, center, with his 250-pound cross, the grand champion market hog, purchased by C.L. Ruffner & Sons of Indiana for $7.00 per pound, for a total of $1,750. Also pictured, left to right, are Pennsylvania Fair Queen Wendy Will of Berlin; Indiana County Fair Queen Valerie Fyock; Clair Ruffner, Jr.; and Neal Buss, deputy secretary, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Bryan Martin of Marion Center RD 1 with "Sonny," his 1,260-pound Key-Angus cross steer judged the grand champion baby beef. The champion steer brought $4.25 per pound at the fair's 4-H and FFA Junior Livestock Sale.



Joel and June Rose of Armagh with "Elk-Lick Golden Kitty," the fair's supreme grand champion dairy cow. Kitty, who is out of a 90-point Criterion dam, scored 88 points herself as a four-year old. Her sire is Tri-Day Valient Gold. Although not the top producer in the Rose's herd, Kitty is a 21,000-pound production cow with 710 pounds of fat. In addition to the grand champion ribbon, the Rose's Shallow Run Farm took six other first-place awards and three second-place ribbons in dairy judging. The Roses brought nine cows to the fair but went home with 10: a new calf was born during the week at the fairground.

The master fitter award in the junior division was won by Jennifer McMillen of Marion Center RD 2, and by Tammy Farmery of Marion Center RD 2 in the senior division.

Young Farmers Tour Market

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Recently the Kutztown Young Farmer Group toured the recently built Kutztown Produce Market located between Fleetwood and Kutztown.

The manager of the market, Herb Gebely, and a few of the board of directors explained to the group how the operation was handled.

The group never realized they would be dealing with the produce market as a group in the near future, according to a spokesperson. It all started when Ralph Sanner, a Kutztown Young Farmer member, thought of an idea for the chapter to raise some money.

This idea began with Ralph and Kenny Sanner offering a piece of ground for the chapter to plant and raise sweet corn on and then sell it at the Kutztown Produce Market, the profits of which would go in the chapter's treasury.

Sanner planted ½ acre of sweet corn. The field was located approximately two miles from the Sanner's home farm and was planted the first week in May. The ground was minimum tilled and no post emergence insecticide was used with excellent results.

When the sweet corn was ready to be picked the first week in August, approximately 11 people helped in picking the corn. The corn was picked over three different days and taken to the produce market each time.

The market wholesaled more than 300 dozen (13 ears per doz.) and Sanner retailed about 10 more dozen from the farm. Dr. Jerry Cal, Young Farmer Advisor, believed the ½ acre of sweet corn should have produced almost 8,000 ears, but because of the shortage of rainfall, it only produced one-half of its capacity of marketable ears of sweet corn.

Doebler's All Stars

OUR TOP BINBUSTERS FOR 1992

by Ted Doebler

I'm Ted Doebler, with five proven performers you can really depend on.

My nephew, Bill Camerer, should take the bows for our 1991 Doebler All Stars. All are binbusters with the field tests to prove it.

When Bill grabbed the research reins at Doebler's in the mid 70s, we were bragging about the likes of 85X and 56X. But these old favorites were 30 bushels short of such All Stars as 66XP and 45XP introduced by Bill since 1988.

Only "old timer" breaking into the All-Star lineup this year is 75X, PA's alltime record holder and VA's alltime silage champ.

We also name our Top Pick, an All Star that truly dominates its maturity group in your area like no other hybrid on the market.

The computer did the hard work, sifting through thousands of farm tests and research trials from New York to Virginia. Best five yields of every hybrid were totaled each year for the past three years. Then the All Stars were selected by averaging the top 15 yields.

Why three years? They give us the best and worst of growing seasons. A sort of obstacle course for hybrids that's seldom matched.

Just how well did our All Stars perform? Let's look at the records:

Our Top Pick for Pennsylvania

DOEBLER 66XP, 103 days. Super vigor. Great standup. Amazing production for its maturity. Like a Top 15 average of 196.5 bushels over past three years. And 1990 best of 27.9 tons silage, 5.4 tons TDN and 1241 lbs. protein.

How All Stars run up yields

These All Stars had to shell big in drought, deluge and extreme heat of the past three years to make the team.

DOEBLER 84XP, 118 days. Nothing but raves from growers. Excellent disease resistance. Great standup. Superior drought rating. Top 15 average? 194.3 bu.

DOEBLER 75X, 113 days. Our best seller. And no wonder. Big ears. Sturdy stalks. And PA's all time corn champ at 281.6 bu. 1990 best: 218.5 bu. Top 15 average: 196.6 bu.

DOEBLER 45XP, 92 days. Superior stalks. Healthy. Quick drydown. Top 15 average of 169.9 bu. 1990 best: 204.5 bu. 1990 silage best: 20.3 tons.

DOEBLER 35XP, 84 days. Sturdy stalks for sure. Scant 1% stalk loss in 1989 N.Y. trials. Big yields, too. 1990 best: 164.5 bu. Top 15 average: 157.2 bu.

Test Forages For Nitrates

R. S. ADAMS
PSU Dairy Specialist

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Farmers with drought-stricken crops should test whole-plant corn silage for nitrates before feeding it heavily to cattle.

Tests run recently have indicated some levels of nitrate ion (N03) of 1.5-3.5 percent or higher on a dry matter basis, particularly on material harvested from fields fertilized with lots of manure or commercial fertilizer.

Some farmers already have ensiled some corn that was dying. Others are contemplating such.

It generally is best to let drought corn get as close to normal maturity as feasible before harvesting. This enables a higher level of energy in the plant, even though there is little or no ear development. However it should be cut before moisture levels in the whole-plant material drop below 55-60 percent. Despite a lot of dead lower leaves, droughty corn often may run 65-70 percent moisture. Use microwave drying or moisture testers to determine moisture levels in chopped material.

Nitrate levels may be reduced some by cutting at somewhat higher-from-the-ground levels that leave the lower parts of the stalk which may contain more nitrate.

A rainfall of ¾ inch to 1 inch may reduce the nitrate content of the plant by as much as two-thirds provided the plant is obviously revived and a time lapse of three to seven days occurs before harvesting.

Also, a considerable reduction in nitrate content may occur during ensiling. However, it may not be adequate to render the silage safe without special feeding precautions and dilution with other feeds. Thus it is important to have nitrate tests done on whole-plant corn, sorghum, sudan grass and sorghum-sudan hybrids that have been hit by drought. These tests are available at most forage testing laboratories.

Preferably, ensile drought-stricken crops, rather than feed them as green-chop to reduce risk from nitrates and prussic acid poisoning.

If nitrate levels exceed .45 percent to .75 percent nitrate ion (N03) or .10 percent to .17 percent nitrate nitrogen (N03-N) on a dry matter basis, test other forages in the ration as well, especially legume hay and even haylage. Nitrate content also may be elevated in these crops when they are drought-stricken.

Reasonably high nitrate forage may still be fed in limited amounts, if level of nitrate in the total ration dry matter (forage plus concentrate) is not over .40 percent N03 or .09/ percent N03-N. Include the contribution of nitrates from water if it contains over 44 ppm N03 or 10 ppm N03-N.

Forage containing over 1.0 percent nitrate or .23 percent nitrate nitrogen may be toxic if eaten in large amounts in a short-period of time. Animals may suffer from lack of oxygen in their blood and may die.

Intakes of nitrate ion over .40 percent or .10 percent nitrate nitrogen may increase the incidence of reproductive problems. If sudan or sudan-sorghum hybrids are involved in a problem, it is important to distinguish between nitrate and prussic acid toxicity.

This can be done by checking the color of freshly drawn blood and also testing suspected forages and rumen contents for prussic acid as well as nitrate.

Prussic acid or HCN testing is available at the Animal Diagnostic Laboratory of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture/BAI, P. 0. Box 367, Summerdale, PA 17093.

Suspected forages or those known to contain appreciable nitrate should be introduced gradually in the diet. Feed them after the animals have eaten other forages and supplement rations with concentrate to help in avoiding toxicity. Dilute problem forages to provide safe levels of nitrate in the diet.

The proper use of urea or other non-protein nitrogen sources on forage or via concentrates does not aggravate a nitrate problem. Poisonous silo gas is more apt to be formed when forages with elevated nitrate content are ensiled. Use precautions in this regard. While silo gas formation often stops after several weeks of ensiling, it may persist for months in some cases.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

ARIS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

ARIS allows dairymen and their authorized veterinarians and nutritional consultants to access individual DHIA herd records from a personal computer to the main computer in State College. Call the State DHIA office number listed in the FOCUS column head to learn more about how you can use this unique DHIA service to increase the profitability of your herd and the DHIA records you produce.

ARIS Notes
By Louise I. Sible

Q: If I purchase a PC based dairy management package from a company other than DHIA, can ARIS and my package work together?

A: In many cases, yes. If the dairy management package you are using can accept test files from another program, it will be able to interact with ARIS. Instead of typing test day information from the DHIA sheets into a program, many dairymen save time by retrieving and importing this information from ARIS. Some packages that we currently interface with include: Cow Search by Vermont Computer Software (Holstein Association), Farm Management Series by Check-Tech, Inc. (Purina Mills), Dairy Management by GeoLogic Inc., Dairyplan by Westfalia, and DairyFlex by SoftFlex Systems, Inc. We are currently working on an interface with DairyTRAK by Doan Agricultural Services Co.

Maine Anjou Cross Reigns Supreme At York

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — Close show ring competitiveness and exhibitor experience fuel fair championships.

For the grand champion of the York Fair Open Beef Show on Monday, it was a complete surprise to take home the sliver platter, not to mention the blue ribbon from the crossbred class, for a 1,210-pound 2-year-old Maine-Anjou/Angus cross.

Shawn Waltimyer, 14, who became champion in two classes — Chianina and Other Breeds — attributes the grand honor to working on grandfather Don Walter's 50-head beef farm and for parents who also were in 4-H. Shawn is a member of the York Co 4-H Beef Club and won his first open 4-H show at the fair in 1988.

Kelly Adams, Medium Weight: 1. Tracey Willwert Light Heavyweight: 1 Shawn Waltimyer. Champion: Shawn Waltimyer. Reserve: Tracey Willwert.

The reserve champion went to a purebred 1-year-old Angus. Robin Shive, 18, a freshman from York College, has been exhibiting "since I was a baby," she said.

The Shives have had several championships at the York Fair in the past. For 10 years, Robin has been exhibiting at the show. Her sister Cathy won supreme heifer in the open show last week, and about 3 years ago, her sister Christine placed high in the open show.

Naturally Ventilated Houses Provide Quality Air For Birds

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Quality in, quality out.

For poultry broiler and layer producers, those are the keywords to obtaining good air distribution in their naturally ventilated houses. And a healthy bird means better profits.

Natural ventilation systems combine qualities of both an art and a science, according to Gary Fonkert, PALS national sales representative, who spoke to 35 industry representatives at the season kickoff of the Poultry Health and Management Seminar on Monday.

"Natural ventilation is based on a 'fireplace effect,'" said Fonkert. "And I guess, you know, coming from Minnesota where I have a fireplace, I can say that, sometimes they work, sometimes they don't. . . ."

Art form

According to material supplied by the textbook, "Ventilation of Agricultural Structures" published in 1983 by Hellitson and Walker, natural ventilation is usually considered by the poultry industry to be an inexact art form. According to Fonkert, because of equipment used and people needed, to make ventilation work, people have first to understand the basic principles of ventilation.

For too long, mechanical ventilation has been the preferred way to ventilate houses. Automatic systems with repeatable setpoints have occupied the industry. But because the need for fresh air in poultry structures is becoming more paramount, the industry should consider natural ventilation because of cost and labor savings in the long term.

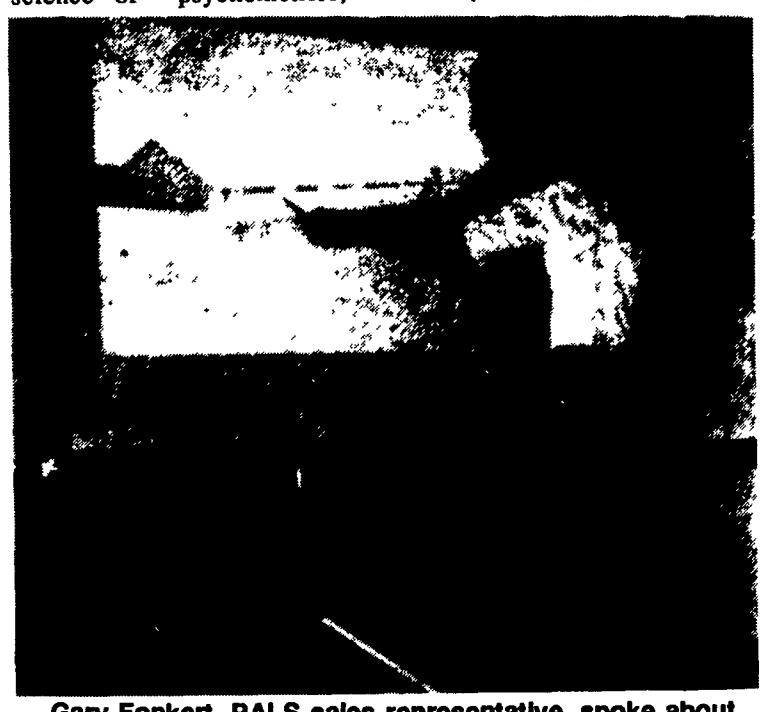
Several factors must be examined, including the exchange of air, thermal environment, and the science of "psychometrics," which determines how much water is held in the air at what temperature.

The type of air coming in will determine the type of air going out, and controls must be adequately set and maintained to do so, according to Fonkert.

20-degree difference

The air must be maintained at 60-70 percent relative humidity. Air being brought in is heated

(Turn to Page A27)



Gary Fonkert, PALS sales representative, spoke about naturally ventilated poultry houses at a seminar in Manheim on Monday.

Naturally Ventilated Houses

accordingly to remove the humidity. But "unless you have a 20-degree difference between your outside temperature and your inside temperature of your poultry house," said Fonkert, "you really can't do anything with treating humidity."

Producers must control the humidity to control the ammonia, which is produced when the manure falls into the litter and becomes wet.

"So you can really do a relatively good job of controlling that relative humidity inside if you have that 20-degree difference," he said.

In the case of naturally ventilated houses, air blowing against one side of the building creates a negative pressure on the other side. If the wind shifts a little bit — 15 or 20 degrees — the negative pressure area on the building can competely change, according to Fonkert.

Poor distribution

"A common problem in the natural ventilation of buildings is the poor distribution of fresh air," he said. "In other words, if the sides are open, the air comes in, but it all conglomerates right at the center of the building. We need some way to move air out of there."

The "chimney effect" draws air up the same way as in naturally ventilated houses.

To prevent the accumulation of bad air in the middle of the building, ridge vents must be open. In PALS case, the poultry houses are also equipped with inside fans to help push the accumulated air outside.

The ridges and sides of the poultry houses are opened accordingly to help air flow. These are controlled by computer.

Communicate together

"The computers and whatever controls have to be able to communicate together," he said, "to allow (air to flow) from one end to the other or from the middle out to the other end."

Buildings should be constructed in an east-west formation to allow heating during the winter and cooling during the summer.

The PALS buildings use three control systems in a 500-foot length. Each control monitors the temperature and humidity in a "zone."

The entire system is run off of an air compressor, including the ridge, sidewall, and vents. Instead of a fan operating, the air compressor performs the same job. Fans are used inside to circulate the air.

The company has been using computer controls with ventilation systems since 1975. The industry must carefully consider using natural ventilation as the importance of maintaining bird health grows.

"What with today's animal rights people being out there, we need to take into consideration (ways) to keep that bird or animal as healthy as we possibly can," Fonkert said.

Northeast Poultry Conference To Convene In Lancaster

guest speakers representing the broiler, egg, and turkey industries in concurrent sessions beginning at 9 a.m. each day. (A complimentary buffet breakfast will be held starting at 7 a.m. each day.)

"The two most challenging problems facing the broiler, turkey, and egg industries — food safety and clean environment — will be major topics during the event," said McLaurin. "Salmonella will be discussed by expert panelists and speakers, and ways to control it demonstrated by exhibitors."

Conference topics include marketing, disease control, management suggestions, and production practices. Exhibits cover the gamut of industry information from animal health to watering, according to McLaurin.

Composting techniques and equipment will be highlighted at the show, and production equipment, computer, vaccine, financing, and other representatives will be at the trade show.

The conference is scheduled in the morning, and the trade show in the afternoon.

"We bring to the event not only a more diversified membership, but also expertise in management conferences," said John Hoffman, PPF executive director.

"We felt that by joining the PPF conference with the show, it would enhance both the conference and show," said Dave Newman, chairperson, NEUEP Associates. "It will make the show more meaningful and draw more attendance"

Earl Butz

Newman said the conference and show combines the PPF conference, held annually in Grantville, and the NEUEP show in Atlantic City.

"The shows were moved to Pennsylvania to get closer to producers, and attract them to a combined meeting," said Newman.

Guest speakers for the conference include John Dancy, NBC News Senate correspondent. For the past five years, Dancy has been covering the U.S. Senate. He is the frequent anchor for the nightly NBC News Update. He will speak Wednesday, Sept. 25 at 11 a.m.

Also, Earl Butz, former U.S. secretary of agriculture and dean emeritus of agriculture from Purdue University, will be talking about the great American food machine in "Our Fabulous Food System: America's Best Kept Secret" on Thursday, Sept. 26 at 11 a.m.

In addition, the PPF will hold their annual Poultry Golf Tournament (open to everyone) on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 24, prior to the opening of the convention.

Other optional events include the golf lunch and tournament, a tour of Amish country, and a dinner theater presentation at the Dutch Apple.

The conference registration fee is $100.00, and the trade show is open to the public. For registration to the conference, contact the PPF, (717) 652-7530. For exhibitor space, contact NEUEP, (202) 296-8248.

MAMMA Develops New Promo Tools

TOWSON, Md. — The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) has developed two new promotional tools designed to build milk sales, and help area retailers — operating hours signs.

The signs are for supermarkets and convenience stores which will display the hours that each business is open, along with the "Milk. It Does A Body Good." message.

The convenience store version measures 8 inches by 8 inches and features full color graphics on both sides. In addition to the message promoting milk on the front, the back features an appetizing bowl of ice cream with fruit.

The supermarket sign measures 11 inches by 17 inches, is one-sided only, and promotes milk. The reason for the one-sided graphics is that the larger, usually mechanically operated door that the consumer uses to enter the store is generally not the door that is used to exit.

MAMMA Marketing Director Bill Snitcher says the signs will create "top of mind" awareness of dairy products at the point of purchase.

"I want that shopper to stop before they even get into the store, and ask themselves, do I need milk?," Snitcher says. "And when they are ready to walk out of a convenience store, I want them to see such a great looking shot of ice cream that they will soon eat the ice cream they just bought, or turn around, and go back into the store to make a purchase that they had not previously planned."

The signs are available, free of charge, to any retailer who sells dairy products. Store operators who would like to receive them may contact the MAMMA office directly at (301) 321-0266 or work through their fluid milk supplier.

Swine Farmers Named Outstanding Berks County Farm Family

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — The Oscar J. Manbeck family of Bethel was named outstanding farm family in Berks County for 1991 during the Reading Fair banquet last week in the Fleetwood Grange Hall.

This is the 36th year the fair committee has been honoring farm families for outstanding achievements in agriculture.

A look at the book the Manbecks put together to detail the efforts on their 340-acre swine farm shows why the Pomona Grange (the umbrella organization of all the granges in the county) chose them.

The book is meticulously put together, with all snapshots mounted on red paper and activities neatly typed.

Introducing the family, Karen Mohn said the couple, Oscar and Sandy, met 25 years ago at the Kutztown Fair where she was Pork Princess and he was showing his swine.

The Manbecks received a $600 gift certificate from Boscov's Department Store, chief sponsor of the Reading Fair.

A. Wayne Readinger, agriculture director of the fair, said potential farm families must submit a detailed record of their operation, which then is judged by someone from outside Berks. Points are awarded for specific areas and the family with the most points wins.

Also honored were four young people who have excelled in 4-H and FFA for several years.

Michele Wojszwillo, 18, of Reading R.D. 2 and a student at Millersville University, was honored for her achievements with the Leesport 4-H Club in clothing and textiles.

She achieved the highest honor in 4-H in 1990 when she represented Berks County 4-H and Pennsylvania at the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, said Rick Kauffman, Penn State extension agent and 4-H coordinator.

Mark Runge, 18, of Douglassville, was honored for his distinction of being an outstanding equestrian.

Runge won seven state horse championships, Kauffman said. In addition, he said, Runge recently completed auctioneering school.

Rodger Bashore, 18, of Oley R.D. 1, was honored as the outstanding FFA boy. Along with his work in a variety of production farming projects and contests, Bashore recently was named Berks County Star Farmer and he received the state FFA degree.

James Howe, Bashore's agriculture instructor at Oley Valley High School, said among Bashore's accomplishments was a trip to Japan last summer in which he lived and worked on a family farm there.

Margaret Yarmush, 18, of Elverson, was honored as top FFA girl. Ronald Frederick, agriculture teacher at Twin Valley High School, from which Yarmush graduated, said Yarmush personally collected all of the empty milk bottles used by the Berks County Dairy Farmers Association in their milkshake truck at the recent Kutztown Fair and took them to be recycled.

An emotional Yarmush thanked the group for the honor.

"I hope to save the environment so all you farmers can keep farming," she said.

Each youth will receive a $100 U.S. savings bond.

Keynote speaker, state Sen. Michael A. O'Pake, said Pennsylvania has the largest rural population in the country. Five percent of the population that farms are feed ing the rest of us.

Four young people are honored by the Reading Fair. In front are Michele Wojszwillo, outstanding 4-H girl, and Margaret Yarmush, outstanding FFA girl. Standing from left are Mark Runge, outstanding 4-H boy, and Rodger Bashore, outstanding FFA boy.

"I know it's very attractive t. sell off land for malls," O'Pake said. "But we appreciate what you're doing. We need you."

Albert Boscov, president of the fair committee, greeted the crowd, and Dave Souders, vice president, gave a rundown of entertainment scheduled for the fair Sept. 16 to 21 in and around the Fairgrounds Square Mall, Muhlenberg Township.

4-H'ers Share York Fair Breeding Sheep Titles

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Hampshires proved to be a dominant force in a heated York Fair 4-H breeding sheep contest, with black-faced woolies snagging two of the three supreme titles.

A pair of Hampshires bred by Matt Trostle took supreme pair honors for the Red Lion veteran 4-H exhibitor.

Champion titles in the Dorset show went to Melissa Emmett, Wellsville, with the winning ram, and to Julie Kern, York, for the top ewe and pair.

Hampshire titles were shared by Matt Trostle, with the champion ram and pair, and Tabitha Ebersole, York, who exhibited the winning Hamp ewe.

Jennifer Flinchbaugh, York, took champion titles for both ram and pair in the Southdown category. Matt Trostle exhibited the ewe champion.

Meghan Hayes, Red Lion, claimed both champion ram and pair honors in the Suffolk division. Exhibiting the champion Suffolk ewe was Julie Kern, York.

Montgomery 4-H Dairy Members Compete

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — The Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Show was recently held at the Montgomery County 4-H Center in Creamery as part of the 4-H Fair.

A total of 45 animals with all six major dairy breeds represented were exhibited by 17 members of the Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Club.

The dairy cattle were judged for type (body structure) and fitting (how well the animal is groomed). In addition, each 4-Her was judged on their ability to show their bovine during the contest.

This year, animals exhibited by Seth Wolfgang of Bechtelsville and Drew Sterner also of Becnteisviile were the Holstein champion and reserve champion, respectively.

Champion and reserve champion for the 5 color breeds were: Ayrshire, Seth Wolfgang; Brown Swiss, Jonathan and Katie Sterner of Bechtelsville; Guernsey, Karen Wolfgang of Bechtelsville; Jersey, Paul Plummer of Chalfont and Danielle Breaux of Salfordville; and Milking Shorthorn, Danielle Breaux.

The fitting and showing portion of the dairy show was divided into three age groups — juniors, ages of 8 to 11; intermediates, ages 12 to 14; and seniors, ages 15 to 19.

In the junior fitting, Charis Alderfer of Harleysville was first and Zach Quigley of Lansdale was second. Junior showman awards were won by Zach Quigley of Lansdale and Lizzie Moser of Gilbertsville.

In the intermediate division, Jonathan Sterner of Bechtelsville won both fitting and showman. Katie Sterner won second place in fitting and Karen Wolfgang won second in showmanship.

For the senior 4-Hers, Paul Plummer and Brenda Wolfgang won first and second place in the fitting contest, and Brenda Wolfgang and Paul Plummer won first and second place in the showman contest, respectively.

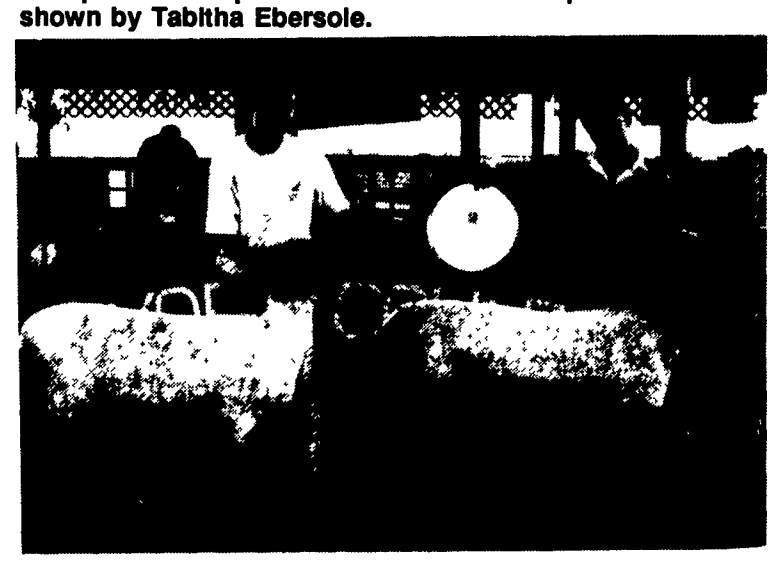
All blue ribbon animals were eligible for the Southeastern District Dairy Show with participants representing nine counties.

Nine Montgomery County 4-H are eligible to compete in the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show which is to be held Monday, Sept. 23, at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Eligible 4-Hers include: Danielle Breaux, Amy Plummer, Paul Plummer, Drew Sterner, Jonathan Sterner, Katie Sterner, Brenda Wolfgang, Karen Wolfgang, and Seth Wolfgang.

All participants of the 4-H dairy show were required to complete a project book for each animal. The 4-H dairy experience helps teach the basics in how to care for animals and the economics involved with raising dairy animals.

For more information on Montgomery County's 4-H dairy program contact Tim Fritz at 489-4315.



Matt Trostle, right, got a hand from Adam Sellers as he exhibited his supreme champion Hampshire pair in the 4-H breeding sheep competition.

NATIONAL Farm Safety Week
SEPTEMBER 15-21,1991
According to the National Safety Council, agricultural work accidents resulted in 1300 deaths and 120,000 disabling injuries in 1990. The accident death rate in agriculture was 42 per 100,000 workers, among the highest for all industries. While on the farm it's important to protect yourself at all times and to avoid accidents by working with caution. Take time this week to look around your farm to see where safety precautions could be improved, it may be the smartest move you make this fall.

Lancaster Farmland Trust Holds Kick-Off Picnic

MILLERSVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farmland Trust, a non-profit farmland preservation organization, held their campaign kick-off picnic at the farm of Amos and Mrs. Amos Funk last Sunday. Over 150 guests attended the event, which included folk music and rides in an original Conestoga wagon.

During the picnic, Wilson McElhinny, Chairman of the Trust's 1991 Funding Campaign, set the campaign's goal at $200,000 and announced the anonymous pledge of a $50,000, challenge match grant to the drive if a matching $50,000 is raised by October 15. "I was overwhelmed as well as overjoyed by the generosity of the caller," McElhinny said. "This is a piece of extremely good news." Assisting McElhinny in the drive are Trust Board members Brent S. Shunk and Phyllis C. Whitesell. The Trust will conclude the Funding Campaign by mid-November.

Alan Musselman, executive director of the Trust, also announced that the Trust has recently concluded the permanent preservation of three farms. They are the Robert Wenger farms in Manheim and Warwick Townships for a total of 192 acres, and a 17 acre Warwick Township farm whose owner is confidential for now. Musselman noted "Lancaster Farmland Trust's ability to work with landowners in complete confidentiality is one of the advantages of working with a private land trust." He added, "right now, the Trust is working with over a dozen farmers throughout Lancaster County toward the preservation of their farms. We hope to announce their preservation in the near future."

Wenger originally preserved his farms for a 25 year period through the county program in 1984. Now he is making the preservation permanent by donating perpetual conservation easements on the two properties to Lancaster Farmland Trust. When asked what led him to take this step, he replied "now that Warwick and Manheim Townships are taking the preservation of agricultural land seriously; I want to encourage them to go even further. So I decided to permanently preserve my farms through the Trust."

As of Sunday, September 8, Lancaster Farmland Trust has preserved 30 farms for a total of 2331 acres. For more information about Lancaster Farmland Trust write P.O. Box 1562, Lancaster, 17603, or call (717) 293-0707 between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Reiff Takes Both Top Market Lamb Titles

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — One of the largest town fair sheep shows here garnered Lyndon Reiff, 17, a senior at Lampeter-Strasburg High School, grand champion market lamb on Thursday night.

"Mason," the 112-pound Suffolk, won the market title. Lyndon's 140-pound Suffolk/Hampshire cross, "Napoleon," was the reserve grand champion and heavyweight champion at the fair. Lyndon plans to show Mason at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition and at the state Farm Show in Harrisburg.

Lyndon had strong competition from his sister, Lisa, who came in second behind him, with two reserve champions. She also exhibited the champion pair of market lambs. Reserve market pair went to Jeff Martin.

In the breeding classes, the grand champion ram, a Suffolk, was shown by Jeff Bollinger. Amy Eshelman had the reserve grand champion ram with an Oxford.

Leon Hunter had the champion lightweight lamb, and Jason Stoltfus had the reserve champion.

The grand champion ewe was a Hampshire shown by Joyce Heffner and the reserve grand champion ewe was a Suffolk shown by Jerry Bollinger.

David Lytle, a Hampshire breeder from Chester County was the judge for the more-than 150 head show.

Simmental Beef Notes

MYLIN MESSICK
Vice President
PA Simmental Association

Upon completing the 1991 calving and breeding season, I decided to take a breather and reflect on the past few months. I'm sure that I'm not the only one who believes that some days the cattle business is very trying and takes a lot of soul searching. Our calf crop included an exceptionally large number of twin calves this year. Coming from a family of 13 children, I am now beginning to understand fertility and its consequences!

As all cattlemen will reluctantly admit, behind the scenes there are a lot of heart-breaking (and bank-account-breaking) situations -- like losing a beautiful, well-bred, polled heifer calf from Old Bossy. That calf would have been ready to take on the challenging competition of any state fair! Old Bossy's been there many times herself and was always at the top end of the class after the judge's scrutiny, with her ears perked proudly as if to say, "Challenge me."

Well, Old Bossy and the farm crew and I just couldn't keep the ends together as that baby champion heifer slipped into cow heaven. You could feel the heartache of Old Bossy as she licked her dead baby and kissed it goodbye. Then she looked at the attendants as if to say, "Where did you guys get your credentials?" Yes, we all walked away slowly and needed to clear our eyes and throats.

Those are times when I say to myself, "What am I doing in the cattle business?" and I feel like I'm ready to load the cattle trailer faster than you can drive it in the lane. Sleep wasn't good that night. Though I told my spouse I just drank too much coffee, down deep inside it was really those piercing eyes of Old Bossy haunting my thoughts.

Time does heal all wounds and I have gotten myself together and made peace with Old Bossy. You just try to talk me out of one of those old foundation cows or promising show heifers now! I can find more excuses why I could part with anything else but my cattle.

Bixler, Leib Seize York Sheep Show Championship

ANDY ANDREWS

YORK (York Co.) — Breed characteristics, breed characteristics, and breed characteristics — again and again, these create a champion.

But what does a judge do when all breeds have the finest characteristics to offer in a grand sheep show?

Tim Fleener, a Hampshire and Southdown breeder from Robesonia and a national director of the American Hampshire Sheep Association, looks at another characteristic in judging sheep — "showiness." And that's what he found on Monday night at the York Fair sheep breeding championship show.

The ram was "the kind of sheep I was looking for in a championship show," said Fleener. "The best part was the profile, and it had a lot of thicknesss. A super ram."

The ram champion, an Oxford ram lamb, was exhibited by Jason Bixler.

The champion ewe, exhibited by Bob Leib of Shepherd's Crook, was a Columbia yearling ewe. According to Fleener, the ewe "had good breed characteristics, and a good set of feet and legs," he said.

Following is a list of show championship placings.

ASCS Administrator Tours Pennsylvania

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The administrator of the U.S. Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) on Thursday toured south central Pennsylvania to see first hand what kind of work is being done in agriculture and in support of agriculture.

Keith Bjerke, administrator for the federal agriculture department's ASCS, said the purpose of his trip was to, "See more of the agriculture in Pennsylvania and Lancaster County and meet some of the interesting faces."

The tour by Bjerke, the top man in ASCS, is similar to a general inspecting his troops. However, the mood of the visit and tour did not carry any suggestion of the formality of a military leader reviewing operations.

Bjerke's intinerary was busy.

On Wednesday night, after arriving in Harrisburg, Bjerke met with about 75 ASCS employees working here and a number of representatives of state agriculture agencies and organizations, at a picnic on a farm on Three-Mile Island.

Island farmer Gary Hunsicker was host for the get-together. Also attending were representatives of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, the Pennsylvania Farmers Union and the Pennsylvania State Grange, and the state Department of Agriculture.

On Thursday morning, about 30 people involved with agriculture — including Donald Unangst, ASCS executive director for Pennsylvania — joined Bjerke on a bus tour that met at Lancaster's Farm and Home Center and went to a Chester County mushroom plant near Avondale, a special manure handling project in the watershed of Pequea and Mill creeks in Lancaster County, and a Lebanon County farm which is contracted in a 10-year Conservation Reserve Program (CRP).

In addition to Unangst, among the 30 were ASCS program assistants, field assistants, county assistants and district directors, almost every aspect of ASCS was represented.

Before the trip, Bjerke said the drought was not the reason for this visit, but he said he would be looking at the problem during the trip. He said that in riding a bus to Lancaster on Thursday morning, "We certainly saw some devastated corn fields from the bus."

On Wednesday evening at the picnic, while mingling with his state employees and representatives of the agriculture agencies, Bjerke talked informally about the dairy issue, the drought and other issues awaiting legislative action, according to Jennifer Minnich, Lebanon County ASCS director who helped organize and run part of the tour.

On Thursday, Bjerke said he expects to see disaster relief legislation created, but "We're waiting for Congress, to see what kind of a distaster relief bill they pass. I'm sure there'll be some kind of bill."

Bjerke said that, while he is confident his people can implement whatever program is eventually established, the longer legislators in Washington wait to agree on a package, the more difficult is will become to make accurate assessments of damages and crop losses.

According to the administrator, he is not backing any specific programs for the Legislature to pass, but is waiting for them to come foward with a program to implement.

He said he didn't know if the program would resemble anything created during past droughts to aid farmers. He said the nature of the 1991 drought is different because every state seems to have some problem, but not every part of any one state is experiencing drought damage.

This is not the first trip to Pennsylvania for Bjerke, who has visited every state except Hawaii and Puerto Rico during his tenure as administrator. There are 2,800 ASCS county offices and state offices.

He said Pennsylvania's ASCS setup "compares very well" to those in other states. "Pennsylvania is a major agricultural state. (The ASCS here) is a tremendous organization from state to county level."

Farm Forum

cause lower farm income. We have learned in the last generation that the milk market is an elastic one. Consumers can, and have, chosen other liquid refreshment over milk. Class I now represents less than 40% of milk sales. Putting the burden of straightening out the dairy industry on Class I fluid milk is just plain silly, and counterproductive.

It is only by selling more fluid milk that we will ever achieve stable growth and higher income for dairy farmers. The problem of falling dairy farm income is a serious one. To argue that New York farmers deserve money for Pennsylvania or New Jersey milk is not only unfair, it's operating in a vacuum.

I have spent thousands of hours and dollars working on achieving a sound and permanent remedy to the long-term health of each segment of the dairy industry. Last year the Congress passed a processor-funded fluid milk promotion effort. This was designed to boost milk sales by making milk beverages more attractive products to the buying public. While we achieved success in the halls of government, we still need broad industry support for the program to work. This is not happening so far.

In fact, while farmers are suffering from low milk prices, several co-ops led by Atlantic and Agrimark have made an emergency petition to Washington to lower milk prices even further. These co-ops want to burden farmers even more by reducing the price they pay for milk that they use to produce butter and powder.

Instead of railing about the need for compensatory payments, which are unconstitutional, New York's dairy farmers should be expending their energies urging their processors to support this promotion program to expand the fluid milk market and put milk back on the growth swing again. If Class I consumption continues to fall, then raising the price will only hasten the slide down the slippery slope and the future for the milk industry will be bleak indeed.

At Harvest, Hershey School Provides Place Of Learning

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — No, Virginia, corn isn't grown behind the "employees only" doors at the supermarket.

And no, Virginia, pumpkins don't sprout from the tables at Pumpkin World.

But yes, there is a place where milk is produced and fruits and vegetables are grown — your local neighborhood farm.

That's the lesson the Milton Hershey School, and the school's farm system, hopes to instill in the students through several new programs. The programs will reach out to students and the community and show them how food is grown and the importance of food production and land management.

Walter Troup, a houseparent at the school for nearly 19 years, now works part-time. A salesman at the fruit stand, he prepares a half peck of peaches for customers.

How sweet is it? Neil Shank, Agway horticultural technician, takes a taste test of a gallium-type (honeydew-like) cantaloupe. Agway runs approximately 60 different type studies of cantaloupes and other varieties of sweet corn, honeydew, and other studies at Milton Hershey School.

Farm Tour

On the last two Thursdays in August every year for the past eight years, Norman Miller, farm manager at Milton Hershey School, has supervised the Pennsylvania Farm Experience Tour.

In cooperation with the Derry Township Park and Recreation Department, children ages 10 to 14 are taken on the tour, which includes stops at the dairy farm, vegetable and fruit farm, and a hay ride.

About 10-15 students take part in the annual tour, which provides a hands-on teaching experience. The experience provides firsthand knowledge of how dairy farms are managed and what is involved in growing fruits and vegetables.

"It's surprising how many kids did not have any concept of what milking a dairy animal or feeding a calf or taking care of crops all consist of," said Miller.

Understanding system

Since the Milton Hershey School was founded in 1909, the importance of understanding the farming system has been taught to the students with hands-on experience. But stepping up the importance of teaching the students is even more critical, now that the surrounding community is becoming increasingly urban, according to Miller.

"Society began moving away from the agriculture world into a more urban setting," said Miller. "So, too, did education. Not just education in the school, but education throughout society."

Less students have been involved with agriculture through the years, and even the Hershey School students have become more involved with other activities, including sports and work outside the farm. This takes them away from knowledge of how food is produced.

So, according to Miller, it is time to focus more the importance of agriculture in the classroom. As a result, the classroom has been moved outside, where students can "gain some insight into what it takes to plant a crop and work its way through harvest," said Miller.

More experiments

The school will emphasize more classroom experiments. Children will be shown how to prune trees, taught the role that plant genetics plays in the operation of a vegetable farm, and shown the "food-to-fiber" process.

The school employs 15 part-time Milton Hershey School students. Summer help from outside the school numbers 20. Ages of students range from 15 to 25, many of which go on to college and return to the farm year after year.

The school manages the six acres used to grow many different types of apples and peaches. Another 55 acres in vegetables is managed by the school and Agway, Inc. Most of the acres are in irrigation.

There is a unique arrangement between the school and Agway. Agway supplies all the seed as part of its northeast variety trials and Hershey supplies some of the equipment and manpower needed to grow the produce.

Research station

The school is Agway's Northeast research station. The company plants about 20 different varieties of sweet corn and about 100 different varieties of tomatoes, according to Miller. Zucchini and squash include about 200 varieties.

The produce varieties are tested. The produce then goes to the school and to market.

"We work a really good marriage," said Miller. "They supply the seed, fertilizer, and herbicides. And we supply a lot of the labor and equipment. It's a very cooperative operation and works out for both of us."

Beginning in January, the school's human resources department will examine student work applications for the next harvest season. What the school looks for is good summer help, returning students, and those that live close by.

Continue with work

"It's not uncommon for us to have students throughout the community that have worked for us for 3-4 years," said Miller. "And we've

Homestead Notes

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

IDA'S NOTEBOOK

My life in September is usually filled with canning and freezing as I try to use everything in my garden. This year I planted seed from what was called an old-fashioned tomato from heirloom seed. It has taken all summer for them to ripen but now they are bearing abundantly. The problem is that a pumpkin vine has climbed all over the plants and the tomatoes are difficult to find.

This year a very old apple tree, in front of our log house that is being built in a corner of our meadow, had an over-abundance of apples. Usually the heifers ate them but this year they are fenced out of the area. The apples were small and had specks but they made delicious applesauce. I made some 20 quarts amd I remembered my mother as she would sit and work on these same small apples. We always told her that she was foolish to waste her time on them and now I am doing the very same thing.

This year I have the oddest accumulation of three kinds of squash and two kinds of pumpkins plus mutants. Some of these plants came up on their own from last years plantings and are very odd shapes and colors. I'll probably just use them as ornamentals.

Allen has been spending his days staining all the trim for the new house. So much wood is needed to frame all of the windows and doors. The inside logs have been stained a golden oak color as have the floors. I managed to help with the window sash one day last week. And, we finally picked out carpet and vinyl from among hundreds of samples. It would have been easier if only a few kinds were available. Now we can hope that a year from now we'll still like our choices.

had them work as much as six years. They've gotten their undergraduate degree and continue on their masters while still coming back in the summer to work."

Students accepted for summer work go through a specialized training program, which introduces them to the equpment. A more advanced training program follows, and they learn the basics of planting, cultivating, thinning, and other applications in growing a crop.

All through harvest season, the students will be employed to pick the crops, which are used to feed the students at the school. The remainder of the harvest is sold at the local auction, and a good deal of it is sold at the two vegetable and fruit stands at the school.

Students are also allowed to come to the stand and pick the produce they need, which saves waste.

Elementary tour

The Milton Hershey School Farms work with the Derry Township elementary schools each year on tours of the dairy and vegetable farms, also. The Milton Hershey School's kindergarten through fifth grade also attends the pumpkin harvest tour. Pumpkins are delivered to the school's kindergarten through senior grades.

In the future, Milton Hershey School is planning an environmental center, to set up wetland areas and arboretums, and classrooms in land management and conservation.

"We're also looking at a petting farm," said Miller. "And the petting farm will mean not only just farm animals, but we'll also look at bringing in some zoo-type animals."

In the future, with the land resources curriculum, the school will place added responsibilities on the kids to learn more from the hands-on approach.

Practical applications

Miller said the methods achieve a "holistic" approach to education. "You're teaching the kid not only the classroom, but you're teaching the practical applications of doing things, so they're more aware of what is around in their environment," he said.

The students are apprehensive about going on the tour at the beginning. Near the end, they come away with valuable experience and have a lot of fun in the process.

"So it's educating students not only about agriculture, but where their food comes from," he said. "And I think that's neat. It's something we can't take for granted."

Perry County Promotion Days

The Perry County Dairy Promotion Committee sponsored its first annual Ice Cream Days on Friday, July 26, on the lawn of the court house, New Bloomfield.

More than 200 vanilla and chocolate dixie cups were handed out by the Perry County Dairy Princess, Jennifer Hummel, left. The Pink Cow was on hand to greet the children.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Before I begin my new column called Microwave Magic I will tell you a little about myself. I graduated from Jefferson High School, Jefferson, New York and Spencer Business School, Schenectady, New York and worked as a secretary for Food Service at the State University, Cobleskill. I married John Stark and moved from my parents' farm to his. We left the farm when my husband took a job with Sperry New Holland. Sperry took us to Oklahoma, Kansas and a transfer back to the main branch in New Holland, Pennsylvania brought us to Akron. Eight children later my life revolves around kids activities, dishes, and, of course, cooking as no one else seems to do it. With my farm background where everything was done from scratch, a microwave was the furthest thing from my mind. After years of my husband saying he'd get me a microwave I finally gave in. For a year or two I only used two push buttons. (Time cook and two minutes). This meant I only warmed things up.

Then I found a recipe for candy which I'll share with you closer to Christmas. With that recipe mastered, I began making candy for sale. Now to recipe two. One of my loves is crafts so my second recipe in the microwave was in the craft line. After trying to figure out how to open those tiny pinecones, I thought again about time cook - two minutes. The house smelled great and my pine cones opened perfectly.

Now it was time to get down to some serious microwave cooking. With time today being a real factor in our lives, microwave cooking can be a lifesaver. In my column I will try to come up with easy recipes as well as some helpful hints to save time.

Have you ever made a beef stir fry in your microwave oven, then wondered if you could make a lamb stirfry the same way? Should you preheat the browning dish for the same time? Will beef take longer than lamb to get done? In my column you'll learn how to arrange chicken drumsticks so they'll cook evenly, how to check a microwave cake for doneness, how to stuff a pepper, how to shape a meat loaf plus many other microwave tips. Today's recipes will include apples, pumpkins and zucchini.

Cooking That Goes Back To The Basics

How many times do you decide to try a recipe only to find you don't have the ingredients on hand? What you want are no frills, good-tasting recipes that don't require a special grocery list.

What one person may keep stocked in their pantry and refrigerator may be different than another. But the following are recipes that won't require a trip to the store for unusual ingredients.

BASIC COOKIES

2 cups butter
2 cups sugar
1 cup brown sugar
4 eggs
6½ cups flour
1 tablespoon cream of tartar
2 teaspoons baking soda
¼ cup milk

Cream butter and sugars until smooth and fluffy. Stir in eggs one at a time. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with the milk. Mix thoroughly. Makes 8 cups of dough that will keep in the refrigerator six weeks. Bake cookies at 350 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes. Take portions of the dough and mix or knead in chocolate chips, raisins, nuts, coconut, (don't forget the maraschino cherries on top), peanut butter. Roll a ball of dough in crushed corn flakes and place jam in a center dent or use your favorite extras. Cookies are best when made small.

Put mashed potatoes back in potato skins. Sprinkle with paprika. Return to oven until potato browns a little on top or until cheese melts.

Cut tofu and bananas into chunks; add half the chunks to blender and whirl until smooth. Add remaining tofu and banana chunks and whirl until very smooth. Pour mixture into a bowl and stir in pineapple; then pour into crust.

Bake in a 325 degree oven until center of cheesecake jiggles only slightly when pan is gently shaken (about 1 hour). Let cool in pan on a rack, then cover and refrigerate until cold (2 to 3 hours).

To serve, remove pan sides and sprinkle cheesecake with reserved crumb mixture. Makes about 8 servings.

Graham cracker crust: In a bowl, combine 1 cup graham cracker crumbs and 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted. Reserve 1 tablespoon of the crumb mixture to garnish top of cheese cake: press remaining mixture evenly over bottom of a 9-inch spring-form pan or 9-inch cake pan with removable bottom. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 6 minutes; let cool.

Ricotta Cheesecake

2 teaspoons butter or margarine, softened
¼ cup toasted wheat germ
3 eggs
3 cups ricotta cheese
⅔ cup sugar
⅓ cup sour cream
⅓ cup cornstarch
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted and cooled
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
2 cups fresh fruit, such as raspberries, strawberries, peaches or nectarines; or raspberry or strawberry sauce
Mint sprigs, optional

Spread the 2 teaspoons butter over bottom and sides of a 9-inch cake pan with a removable bottom, then sprinkle with wheat germ. Set aside.

In a food processor or blender, combine eggs, ricotta cheese, sugar, and sour cream. Whirl or beat until smooth. Stir together cornstarch and baking powder; add to cheese mixture along with vanilla, the 3 tablespoons melted butter, and lemon peel. Whirl or beat until well blended. Pour into prepared pan.

Bake in a 325 degree oven until a knife inserted in center comes out clean (55 to 60 minutes). Let cool on a rack, then cover and refrigerate until cold.

To serve, remove pan sides. Arrange some of the fruit attractively on top of cheesecake; garnish with mint, if desired. Offer remaining fruit to accompany individual servings. Or spoon sauce over individual servings. Serves 12.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Even if the leaves weren't beginning to show hints of color, even if the cattails weren't ripening, even if the unmistakable fragrance of freshly-cut silage corn didn't perfume the air, we would know anyway.

We would know what time of the year it is by the invasion.

The "critters" are invading our house.

Breakfast was nearly over on a recent early morning when a shrill, screeching sound shattered the quiet of the kitchen.

A cricket? In the kitchen? Usually at least one serenades us each fall from the basement, after the first cool night or two sends these friendly "bugs" in search of a more protected environment.

This noisy one was singing its heart out from behind the microwave oven. As long as I stayed more than a few feet away, the shrill calling persisted. Any closer, and the cricket sensed my presence and clammed up.

It didn't really have to worry. Crickets in the house are supposed to bring good luck, we've always heard. After the year's combined record low milk prices and continuing lack of feed crops, the welcome mat is out for an invasion of good-luck-bearing crickets.

Instead, we've got one cricket and an army of at least a thousand spiders pursuing our innocent singer with booby trap webs. Not content to weave their snares behind the microwave, the army has strung webs all over the house.

One spidery batallion has a field camp set up behind the door to the back porch - just in case the cricket is bold enough to march through the normal entrances to the house.

Hasn't worked on a cricket yet, but it occasionally ensnarles one of us.

A whole brigade lies in wait in the upper corners of the living room, with spies stashed in and around the white ruffled curtains at the windows. Operations controls are from web clusters at every level of the bookshelf. And raiding bands haunt the shadows of the second floor stairway, web-weaving round-the-clock.

While crickets and spiders seek indoor refuge, some of our more domesticated species invade with summer's-end population explosions.

Formerly-plump mother cats have gone slim as they raise nests of late-season kittens. One chose a deep hole in a big, round bale, a cozy hay-cave some cow had nibbled out, in which to deliver a litter of three tiny kittens. Another opted for the wagon shed, where the wobbly-legged, chubby-bellied babies now peek out shyly while we bottle-feed our overflow of heifer babies from the calf nursery.

The feed room where silage is run has been taken over by the second hatch from our lone mother hen. After losing every one of her June chicks to a couple of determined barn cats, she promptly laid back on the job.

Wiser this time around, the old white hen corrals her eight fluffy babies (seven black and one cream-colored) where there is feed in abundance and no tall weeds for cat cover. She also has enlisted the parenting protection of the big, old rooster, who would gleefully peck a hunk of fur from the head of any cat, given an opportunity.

And after repeated settings on fruitless eggs, one guinea hen has finally managed to produce and raise one brown-speckled offspring. It's as swift and elusive as a baby pheasant, which it resembles except for larger size, and we only get glimpses of it occasionally.

Waning summer spurs a rush to get things done, including perpetuation of the species by critters hunting mates and homes. Apparently the microwave cricket found neither. Next morning it was meandering around a couple of dishes left in the kitchen sink. I put the leggy, black insect back outside and headed downstairs for my barn shoes.

The shrill screeching sound of a cricket greeted me - in the basement.

It must have sneaked right back inside. Probably with all the mice coming home from their vacations.

Touching the worms: Adra Shenk, demonstrates waste reduction and recycling to students from a second grade in the Alverton Elementary School, near Scottdale. Each person had a chance to see and touch the red wiggler worms. The students are Jesse Hixon, Tonya Miller, and Adam Strohm. Wiggly Worms Work On Waste

DAVID HIEBERT
Co. Correspondent

ALVERTON (Westmoreland Co.) — A local environmental group in Scottdale, Pennsylvania, is helping curb the tide of waste that is filling up the state's landfills. For several years, Audra Shenk, president of the STOP (Stem Township's Offensive Polluters) group, has presented a program on waste reduction to area schools. Audra, the mother of two elementary age children became involved with the citizens group when she learned that the local landfill had been sold to an interstate corporation. That landfill is within sight of Alverton Elementary where her children attend.

This year she spoke to students in Mrs. Water's second-grade class. In a short one-hour program, the kids learned that everyone can do something to reduce garbage. The second grade students even got a chance to touch red wiggler worms, a special breed of worms that are good for home composting. The kids learned that they could feed the worms many kinds of organic materials that are usually thrown away to be buried later in a landfill.

Mrs. Doris Waters, a teacher for 21 years at the Alverton Elementary School, says the issue of the landfills is close to home. One is just across the road from her classroom. She is concerned that we reduce the need for landfill space. The work of STOP, the local group opposing the landfill expansion had been discussed in her class and she wanted something the kids could do now.

Mrs. Waters invited Audra Shenk to demonstrate how to recycle and speak to the class about reusing and waste reduction. During an active part of her talk, volunteers from the class smashed aluminum cans, plastic soft drink bottles, and helped in preparing other common materials for recycling.

Audra warned the class against drink boxes - which are composite material and cannot be separated for recycling. She also suggested that the kids could help their parents avoid buying things with excess packaging, and products which are not renewable or endanger parts of the environment.

As president of the group known as STOP, Audra has been active in many ways to bring attention to the problem of pollution. The danger to her own children, however, is what pushed her the most. The company which proposed expanding the landfill hoped to have as many as 300 trucks each day travelling the same roads as the school busses used. They would create a pile of garbage over 200 feet deep, covering a hundred acres. Audra did not want that!

The highlight of her time with the second graders came as groups of four or five were allowed to go up to the container with the worms. If they were brave, each person could hold one of the wigglers. Two other classes, taught by Mrs. Joan Foster and Mrs. Janis Pajak, were also present to learn about recycling and waste reduction.

Mrs. Waters reported that the talk had an immediate effect on her own household. Her nine-year-old daughter, Dee Dee, requested a reusable drink container in her lunch. Mrs. Waters was happy to respond.

Other classes in elementary schools have heard similar talks from Audra, who is a former Parent/Teacher Organization (PTO) treasurer.

For the Shenk family, the worm project also has had an immediate benefit. In addition to reducing the amount of organic waste they throw away, daughter Jill has used the worms as part of a sixth grade science fair project. It demonstrated how table scraps and shredded newspaper can be turned into a compost which will perk up gardens and lawns.

Marriage and Money--
A Lesson to be Learned

Several months ago I jotted a note to myself to write a column on money and family stress -- not realizing how close to home it would hit!

In three weeks, I will be getting married, and for the last three months financial decisions and family stress have been an intimate reality for me. So what have I learned? Three things: every "expert" can continue to learn, it's important to "practice what you preach," and it's "easier said than done." All cliches; all true.

The area of family economics, finances, and budgeting has been identified as THE top family stressor. Married men and women and single parents all name it as the top cause of family stress. Money and disagreements over money is one of the top three reasons for divorce in the United States today.

But fortunately, we do know about healthy families and how they have come to grips with the strains of making financial decisions and stretching the ever-shrinking dollar. This coping starts with a realization that having more money is not going to remove financial stress from a family's life.

All families that have learned to handle money stresses without having them ruin family relationships have four qualities in common. First, they talk about money on a regular basis. They don't link self-esteem and earning power. That means, if you are a member of the family, you are important and your opinions and desires are considered, whether you bring home a paycheck or not. This also means that the person earning more money does not necessarily always have the last say.

These stress-effective families also develop good money management skills and teach their children about money. The interesting thing is that their ideas vary -- some live by very strict budgets, some give specific allowances, others have a looser style of planning and require their children to work for money. But the common chord is the family's satisfaction with the system they have chosen.

trying to pay for a wedding while still paying rent, buying groceries, and making other regular purchases, has made me interested in how healthy families deal with racing inflation or a cut in income. According to the research, these families tend to scale-down expenses rather than add income. They also scale down expectations. For instance, they may decide having a new car every three years is not as important as it used to be.

The families that have learned to deal with money stresses will also tend tp respect others' decisions about everyday expenses. They don't quibble over those expenditures. But they regularly talk, share, and compromise on major purchase decisions. Couples also report a willingness to give in to a husband or wife on occasion knowing that during some future decision, the roles will be reversed.

I'm already practicing some of these ideas. I'm sure that during the coming months and years of married life I will struggle with more decisions.

You may want to look at your family and how it deals with money issues. Do they cause you continual stress? Consider taking the time to begin practicing some of the things that stress-effective families have shown -- talk about money (don't avoid the subject just because the conversation may become tense), remember to show other family members they are important. Include them in decisions whether they contribute a paycheck or not. If you don't feel comfortable making money decisions, ask a spouse to teach you. Begin a regular savings plan -- even if it is only $5 per week into an emergency fund. And finally, teach your children and grandchildren the lessons you have learned and are learning now.

Why Drink Bottled Water?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you drink bottled water because you like the taste, pay the price and enjoy it. But if you think it's healthier and purer than tap water, think again.

"About 25 percent of bottled water in the United States is just processed tap water from municipal systems," says Dr. Paul Robillard, assistant professor of agriculture engineering in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "Some bottled waters are high in sodium and most lack fluoride which helps protect teeth."

Sales of bottled water have quadrupled over the last decade, partly because consumers are concerned that their water sources are endangered by chemicals accidentally released into the environment.

Aggressive advertising also has convinced many consumers that drinking bottled water is a sign of affluence.

"But there's no need to spend a lot of money on bottled water if it's no better than your own tap water," says Robillard. "The Safe Water Drinking Act of 1974 and subsequent regulations have placed strict limits on contaminants in municipal water supplies."

Currently there are limits on more than 30 contaminants in municipal water supplies. In the next few years, this number is expected to exceed 80.

"If you're on a public water system, you can find out from your local government where your water comes from, what contaminants it is tested for and whether any of these are present in quantities that pose a health risk," says Robillard.

Contaminants found in water supplies include lead, nitrates, radon and benzene. Chlorine used to disinfect water sometimes can interact with compounds produced when organic materials, such as dead leaves, decay. The combination can result in harmful byproducts.

Consumers who have private wells will find it more difficult to obtain accurate information about their water. "Testing of home wells can be expensive and confusing," says Robillard. "You can consult local health officials or your county extension office for advice on the specific tests needed for your location."

If you do decide to drink bottled water, know what you're buying. Many types of bottled water are available at grocery stores and through delivery services.

Spring water reaches the earth's surface from underground aquifers. Sometimes it is naturally carbonated by carbon dioxide gas. Spring waters whose labels don't state that they are "natural" may have undergone some processing, such as the addition of minerals.

Mineral water usually contains large amounts of dissolved mineral salts, such as calcium, sodium, magnesium and iron. Some commercial mineral waters actually are tap water with minerals and carbon dioxide added. Depending on your water source, your tap water actually might contain more minerals than some commercial mineral waters. No studies to date have shown that either a low or high mineral content benefits human health.

Distilled water is processed by heating water and condensing its vapor. It tastes bland and is used mostly for industrial household use, such as in steam irons and batteries.

Sparkling water is "naturally" carbonated, which means the water was effervescent in its underground source. These natural gases usually are drawn off before the water reaches the surface and are reinjected later during bottling to ensure a consistent product.

Club soda is water to which minerals and mineral salts have been added.

Now Is The Time To Make Sauerkraut

The month of September usually provides us with ideal temperatures and humidity for fermenting cabbage into sauerkraut.

Sauerkraut with its sharp flavor adds a pleasing change of pace to winter meals. And it is truly a convenience food — ready to serve cold in salads or appetizers or to heat in a few minutes with frankfurters for a delicious main dish.

Good cooks like to serve sauerkraut cold with a dash of celery or caraway seeds, a few chunks of chilled, drained, canned pineapple or a little pineapple juice added, for an appetizer. They know that the sharpness of its flavor, when hot, depends on how long it has been cooked. For the most tang and greatest crispness, they only heat it. They cook it longer for a milder flavor and softer texture.

Always use pure granulated canning salt to make sauerkraut, and be sure to measure it accurately. The cabbage will not ferment properly if you add too much salt. Try the following method for making sauerkraut for delicious results!

For the best sauerkraut, use firm heads of fresh cabbage. Shred cabbage and start kraut between 24 and 48 hours after harvest.

Facts you should know:

- Suitable containers: 5 gallon stoneware crock or container of similar size, lined with heavy food-grade plastic bag; or two stoneware crocks, about 3 gallons each; or two containers of similar size, lined with large turkey size plastic bags. Fermenting sauerkraut in jars is no longer recommended.
- Suitable covers and weights: Shredded cabbage must be kept submerged in brine while fermenting. Sufficient weight must be used to keep brine 1 to 2 inches above shredded cabbage. There are two ways to do this:
- Put one food-grade plastic bag inside another. Make brine by adding 1- 1/2 tablespoons of salt per quart of boiling water and pour into double bag and tie it shut securely. At least 3 quarts of brine are needed to keep the cabbage under the brine in a 5 gallon crock.
- Use a dinner plate that just fits inside top of crock. Weigh it down with two sealed quart jars filled with sterilized water.
- Cleanliness and good procedures are essential: Crocks or other containers (except plastic bags) must be washed carefully in hot, sudsy water, rinsed well, and scalded with boiling water. If a plate and jars of water are used, they also must be washed, rinsed and scalded each time any scum forms on the liquid surface.

Fermenting kraut should be checked several times each week, and any scum that forms should be skimmed off. The cabbage must be covered with 1 to 2 inches of liquid. If more liquid is needed, use 1-1/2 tablespoons of salt per quart of boiling water.

At temperatures of 70 to 75 degrees F., kraut will be fully fermented in about 3 to 4 weeks; at 60 to 65 degrees F. it may take 5 to 6 weeks. At temperatures lower than 60 degrees F. kraut may not ferment; at about 75 degrees F. kraut may become soft.

To make nine quarts of kraut use 25 pounds cabbage. Work with about five pounds of cabbage at a time. Discard outer leaves. Rise heads under cold running water and drain. Cut heads in quarters and remove cores. Shred or slice so that pieces are no thicker than a dime. Put cabbage in a large clean container and add three tablespoon of salt. Mix thoroughly with clean hands. Transfer to scalded crock or other suitable container and pack firmly until salt draws juices from cabbage. Repeat shredding, salting, and packing until all cabbage is in crock. Be sure crock is deep enough that its rim is at least four or five inches above the cabbage. If juice does not cover cabbage, add more boiled and cooled brine (1-1/2 tablespoons salt per quart of water). Weigh down cabbage by one of the recommended methods and store at ideal temperature of 70 to 75 degrees F. Cover crock with plastic film and clean terry cloth towel.

If you weigh the cabbage down with a brine-filled bag, do not disturb the crock until normal fermentation is completed, when bubbling ceases.

If you use a plate and jar as a weight, you will have to check the kraut at least every other day and remove scum if it forms.

Fully fermented kraut can be kept covered in the refrigerator for several months or it can be canned as follows:

Hot Pack - Bring kraut and liquid slowly to a boil in a large kettle, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and pack rather firmly in clean jars, leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Process pints 10 minutes and quarts 15 minutes in boiling water canner.

Raw Pack - Pack firmly in clean jars leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Cover with brine. Adjust lids and process pints 20 minutes and quarts 25 minutes in boiling water canner.

Frozen Vegetables Top Fresh

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — You may think you're doing your family a favor by serving only fresh vegetables for dinner, but in some cases store-bought frozen vegetables may be the healthier choice.

"If you don't have a garden, store-bought frozen produce is the next best thing to just-picked fruits and vegetables ," says Thomas Dimick, food scientist and senior extension aide in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Produce is frozen within four to six hours of being picked. This locks in the full flavor, color and nutrients that could be depleted when fresh produce travels days or weeks to market, then sits in your pantry or on your refrigerator shelf."

A recent University of Illinois study suggested that store-bought frozen vegetables may have more vitamin C than their fresh counterparts. A researcher found that frozen green beans retained twice the vitamin C than fresh green beans bought at a retail market.

"Freezing is the best method of food preservation and is the least damaging to the vitamin content of certain foods, " Dimick says.

To make sure the frozen vegetables you purchase are as fresh as they can be, first squeeze the package before buying it. "If the vegetables are clumped together, that indicates they may have been thawed and refrozen, which could result in a loss of quality," he says.

"If you can see through the package, be sure the vegetables are brightly colored with no crystallization, another sign of thawing and refreezing.

Olive Oil Hot-Line

NEW YORK, NY— Have you ever wondered whether to use olive oil or extra virgin olive oil in a recipe? Do you understand the differences between saturated, polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats? Do you know which has more fat -- a bran muffin or a slice of angel food cake? A new, free hotline from the International Olive Oil Council can help answer these and other questions.

Registered dietitians on the staff can sort out questions about cholesterol, HDLs versus LDLs, and fats in the diet. Many consumers are confused about the current dietary recommendations to limit fat to 30 percent of total calories for the day. Consumers who call the hotline can also receive three free booklets: a brochure of recipes, a four-color question and answer booklet about olive oil, and a guide to arranging an olive oil tasting.

The toll-free hotline number is 1-800-232-OLIVE OIL. The lines are manned Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Eastern time. After 5 p.m., consumers may leave their name, number and request on an answering machine; the printed materials will be sent.

Ashley Bair, 16, of Westminster (Carroll County) took top honors in the 4-H Learn and Earn competition at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium with an exhibit explaining her thriving topiary business. Bair expects to net nearly $500 this year with her whimsical plant-covered figures.

Topiary Business

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Entrepreneur Ashley Bair of Westminster (Carroll County) earned a grand champion ribbon at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium for an exhibit describing her topiary business. She creates whimsical plant-covered figures by growing ficus and ivy on metal frames filled with sphagnum moss.

Bair, 16, developed her business as part of the 4-H Learn and Earn project, which is designed to teach young people business management and entrepreneurship skills. This is the first year that Learn and Earn has been included as a category in 4-H indoor competion at the State Fair.

Before getting started, Bair visited 10 nurseries, garden centers and other horticultural businesses. She markets her wares through craft shows, workshops and demonstrations, and keeps meticulous expense/earnings records. This year Bair expects to net a profit of nearly $500.

In another first, three boys took top honors in the Food Preparation category. Keith Dutterer, 10, of Westminster (Carroll County) was named junior champion for his lemon sponge cake. Tymon Hevner, 12, of Union Bridge (Fredick County) received the champion ribbon in the intermediate class for his rolled cookies. And pound cake earned 15-year-old Julian Cahall of Cordova (Talbot County) the title of senior — and grand — champion.

David Bengali, 9, of Adamstown (Frederick County) took top honors in the child care category with his rain forest expedition game - designed to keep children entertained for hours while educating them about the rain forest and the creatures that live there.

Cambria County Farmer Talks About 100 Years Of Farming

RON SHAWLEY
Cambria Co. Correspondent

It's hard to judge the date of a farm just by looking at it as you walk around its fields -- unless you happen to take a real close look. You may see an old horse plow or maybe the old locust fence post that seems to be well weathered. Then you may get real lucky and see a flyer hanger on the wall, an advertisement for feed corn, dated 1932. It's these old farms that hold not only history but also knowledge of farming styles long gone.

Mike Buckiss of Cambria County remembers a time when he, as a child, worked the family farm. Now it's his farm, even though it only has a few cows and a handful of chickens. Mike is now 80 years old, but the work on the farm still goes on and for the most part still gets done. He milks the Guernseys twice a day, by his term "HAND POWER."

In 1890, Mike's father started work on the farm, clearing trees, building the barn and raising crops just as Mike does today.

"I can remember some men would go out in the winter and cut blocks of ice out of the local lake. Then they would take the blocks of ice and store them in huge houses using sawdust to pack it in. The ice would stay frozen all summer long that way and even into the next winter." Mike went onto say, "They would bring a block of ice to the house once a week and place it in the freezer."

Without all the things we have today to aid us in farming and our daily chores, we seem to forget how good we really have it. Mike talked about the old days being much more involved.

"We had no electric, so everything we did was by wick light, and we had to pump our own water or take our daily walk to the creek to get it. I can remember walking behind the horse, just to get him to pull the plow. I had to help Mom in the root cellar in the spring and then the fall at harvest and help her store the various items in there," Mike said.

On Mike's farm I saw some old bottles that had some type of fluid within. What shocked me was to watch Mike take some of this fluid, a fluid which looked old and smelly, and use it on a cow which had hoof rot. Mike told me the fluid was homemade, using various roots and plants.

Mike is finding it hard to forget the past as he said, "I wish more farmers would turn to us, the old timers, for the answers. Politics have taken over the farms and everything is going downhill. Farmers should stick together and work together reaching an answer to a problem by working together. The food my mother made contained no chemicals in it, nor did our water have agents in it for our teeth. We were taught everything we needed to know concerning our life on the farm. We were also taught from the golden Book God's Holy Word, the Bible every day. We would give praise to God for the sweat and labor and yes for the plentiful crops that we had. I wonder how many farmers still praise God for everything He's done for us."

Mike's farm is now 101 years old and still has that look of days gone by. The farm is located along Route 22 in Cambria County. The barn is well weathered, the fence row is an old locust post, but still standing, and the apple orchard still produces fruit.

"Farming is the key. It's my reason for being here," says Mike.

He feels that the farm is in need of him more than some old folks home as he calls them. Mike, while laughing, said, "As long as these old bones can move around, then I will continue to work on the farm. Too many people find themselves at the age when it's time to quit working and take that long-needed vacation. Well, I think it's best to keep yourself busy, then you don't have time to grow old."

Sure, Mike has modern equipment on hand, but he still likes using some old equipment... the butter churn, horse plow, wash board, and the list goes on. Some of his friends feel the only reason Mike uses those old items is because they still work.

It's people like Mike who still hold on to the past and value the past like a mother cares for a child. Mike enjoys talking to people about those golden years gone by.

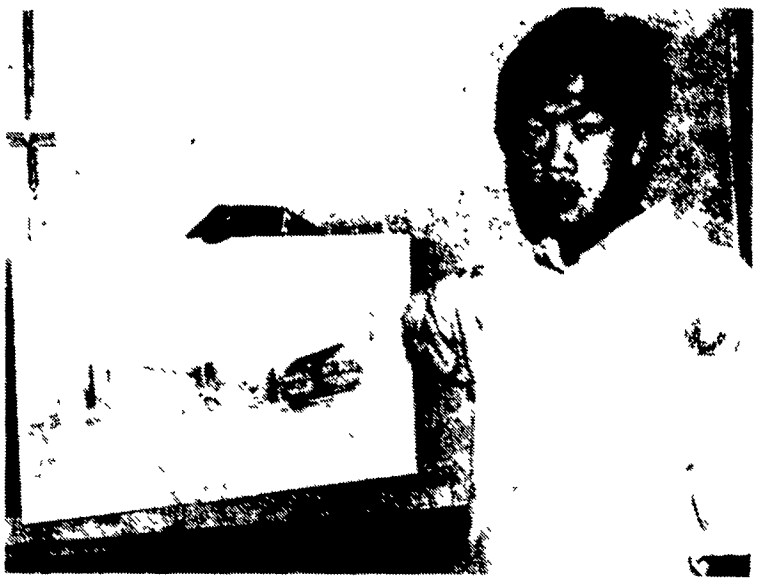
What Happens At The Denver Community Fair?

"Hey, Dad. This is the tractor for me." Three-year-old Darren Zimmerman of Lititz chose this tractor at the Denver Fair.

From Septemer 10 through the 14th, Denver Fair Queen Rebecca Hall reigns over the events. Rebecca, daughter of Robert and Pat Hall of Reinholds competed with eight contestants for the crown.

Five-year-old Josh Hoover of Schoeneck buckled his seat belt for a pretend ride on this tractor displayed at the Denver Fair.



In cooperation with the Pa. State Association of County Fairs, the Denver Fair chose this poster as the best depicting the theme Farm/City Relationships. Tou Yang, a senior at Cocalico High School won a $100 savings bond. Yang will advance to state competition. Farm-City Council plans to incorporate the creative input generated from this contest into their publications.

Dori Thompson, 15, of New Windsor (Carroll County) shows off her Californian rabbit, which was part of the Grand Champion Market Pen at the 4-H Rabbit Show during the Maryland State Fair in Timonium. Dori is a member of the Wakefield Valley 4-H Club.

Josh Franck, Denver, gobbled down six and three-quarters tubs of red Jell-O in two and a half minutes for a $15 prize.

GEHL

Fast, efficient feeding!

Gehl's thrifty feeder wagon features rugged construction and operating simplicity. This economical unit fills the needs of farmers and ranchers who don't require the complete mixing action provided by our mixer feeders. The simple two-auger system smoothly transfers feed to the wide unloading conveyor for high-capacity discharge into feed bunks. The Model 7190 is rated at 190 cubic foot struck capacity.

Gehl Mix-All®: the "can do" machine!

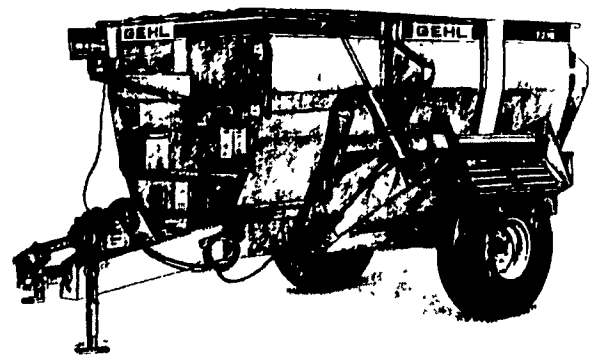
On-farm feedmaking has never been better. Or more worry-free. In fact, Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers are truly "can do" machines. Because they fit into any feedmaking operation; uniformly grind and mix ingredients for a higher quality feed; and save work and time with efficient hydraulics. Choice of 100 or 135 bu. capacity models.

Come in today and see what a Mix-All® "can do" for you!

Gehl TMR Mixer Feeders Are #1

Nothing can maximize the return on investment in your dairy or beef feeding operation like a Total Mixed Ration (TMR) feeding system. And nothing makes TMR work better than a Gehl mixer feeder. Here's why:

- Better Mixing Action - Unique four-auger design creates a double figure-8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy Efficient - Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built To Last - Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Six Sizes - From 150 to 500 cubic feet mixing capacities.
- Three Styles - Trailer type, stationary and truck-mounted units to fit your operation.



Waiver Till April 1, 1992 On All New Gehl Equipment

Equine Expo A Big Hit

Hippology became the talk of the day as 52, ages 8 through adult, competed for the title of champion.

The Equine Expo was a part of the 4-H Fair recently held at the Solanco Fairgrounds.

Literally translated, hippology means study of the horse. As a competition, it involves a comprehensive testing of one's knowledge of the horse and horse-related subjects.

Contestants spent an entire afternoon testing their knowledge in a written test and in stations. Stations are where they are given 10 related items to identify within a 3-minute period.

Juniors had 100 items to identify, and seniors 150. Examples are snaps and buckles, poisonous plants, leg protectors, breed identification, events, bones, forages and grains identification, training aids, farrier tools, and bits.

The winners were as follows: 4-H members ages 8-10; Gabriel Bowman, Drumore took all honors to become Champion with a score of 143 out of a possible 200. In second place was Dallassa Bowman, sister, and third Carol Hollingsworth, Lititz. 4-H Members age 11-13; with 18 entries, Kelly Sullivan, Lititz, took top honors in the stations and overall, with Erin Hess, Lititz, winning the written test honor and placing second overall. Third was Joy Youngt of Nottingham. 4-H Members ages 14-18; Top honors went to Sharon Harnish, Lititz, who was top scorer in the stations and overall. Her closest challenger was Jessica Hill, Conestoga, who placed highest in the written test.

In the non-4-H division, the winners were as follows: Jamie Gigac, Quarryville was champion of the 8 to 13 year olds, and Melissa Morrow, Maryland, of the 14-18 year olds. Competing against 7 other adults, Pat Hill of Conestoga, took all honors in the Adult Division. Jeff O'Donnell, Quarryville placed second and Vickilyn Bowman, Drumore, third. The 4-H Championship awards were sponsored by F.M. Browns Sons, Inc. Tack Shop, Sinking Spring, Pa.

Also a part of the Equine Expo were educational exhibits, quantities of free literature, and educational videos. The Equine Art Center drew many blossoming artists of all ages, and many learned to tie various knots and hitches that are used around horses. Black Mist, two year old granddaughter of the famous Misty of Chincoteague, owned by the Allen family in Manheim, was also present. The Equine Expo was hosted by the Horsin' Around 4-H Club, with help from leaders in the Boots and Saddles and Stable Mates clubs.

Although the Horse Show planned for the 4-H Fair was cancelled because of rain, the Horseless Horse Show proved a very big success, with classes in jumping, obstacle driving, equitation, pleasure, barrel races, and pairs. Contestants are a rider from the waist up and a horse from the waist down, and judged according to regular horse show rules as they compete in the various gaits and classes. Senior grand champion was Leah Harvey of Lancaster, with Melissa Morrow reserve champion. In the junior division, Robert Shuster-Edelson, Manheim, was the grand champion with Jennifer Goodman, Mountville, reserve champion.

Special Tribute To 35 Years Of Dairy Princess Promotion: Pages C1-C15

Former Dairy Princesses Tell How Reign Affected Their Lives

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "Once a dairy princess, always a dairy princess," said Elizabeth Heald Moore, 1985 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess. "I will never, never stop promoting the dairy industry."

Moore is not alone in her passion to tell others that "dairy products are good for you." Almost every former Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Miss Milk Maid that has reigned for the past 35 years share Moore's sentiments.

Carol Virtue Braund, the 1958 Miss Milk Maid, said that 36 years later she is spokesperson for a New York hospital where she defends the use of dairy products in the cardiology section of the hospital.

Carol Robinson Beals who wore the crown in 1960 is now a doctor in Michigan. Because she is convinced of the importance of using dairy products to prevent osteoporosis she said, "I'm a great advertisement for the farmer."

These dairy spokespersons are not only in the hospitals, several are in teaching professions. Tamara Cree Christopher, the 1983 state dairy princess, makes sure that the current dairy princess visits her classroom every year to tell students about the importance of using dairy products.

Some, such as former dairy princesses Debra Miller Brubaker and Cindy Neely Weimer, help provide dairy products by raising Holsteins. Beverly Robinson Minor manages her own dairy store and restaurant.

Eileen Shull Mitchell, who reigned in 1979, now has three children and teaches aerobics classes. "To keep my energy up, I still enjoy lots of dairy products," she said.

Marcia Gnagey, 1973 state dairy princess, travels around the world. She said, "Although my reign has ceased long ago, I still speak up proudly for the dairy farmers and promote dairy products no matter if I'm in the USA or abroad. My heart is and always will be with the dairy farmers."

The history of the dairy princess program begins in 1956 when the Miss Milk Maid contest was initiated by the Pennsylvania Assocation of Milk Dealers. From one to 14 counties were covered by each Milk Maid who then competed for the state title. The Pennsylvania Milk Maid competed for the National crown, until it was discontinued in 1972.

In 1967, no contest was held. In 1968, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association assumed sponsorship of the program and each county was allowed to have a dairy princess who later competed for the state title at the annual pageant held in Harrisburg.

In 1975, district coordinators were appointed to help increase program activities at the county level. Incentive awards were iniated in 1978 to encourage the county princesses to take part in a wide variety of promotional activities.

From 1979 to 1983, Atlantic Dairy Association served as coordinator of the princess program by working with six district coordinators and the county promotional committees. To provide a more uniform program, the district coordinators established the present Pennsylvanai Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., which has its own office and is coordinated by program director, Jan Harding. The program is supported by American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, and Federal Order 36 - Advertising and Promotion Agency.

Throughout this past year, 40 princesses and 35 alternates have held 1,762 school promotions, written 695 newspaper articles, appeared on 970 radio and TV shows, held 639 store and mall promotions, spoke at 512 non-farm meetings and 387 farm meetings, helped at 759 special events, and handed out 141,991 recipe brochures and 270,588 other promotional items.

Washington County has the distinction of providing the most state princesses during the 35 year history of the program. Washington County was home for the 1959, '69, '78, and '83 dairy princesses. Berks County was home for three princesses, the 1963, '77, and '89 princesses. Erie County also claims three princesses, '71, '72, and '84. Those counties called home for two princesses included Lehigh, Centre, Cumberland, Lancaster, Somerset, and Beaver. Twelve other counties lay claim for being the home of a dairy princess.

Who will captured the title this year? To find out, make sure you order your ticket for the annual pageant scheduled for September 21 at the Penn Harris Convention Center in Camp Hill. Tickets are $15 each and are available by sending the money in advance to PDPP, 214 S. St., Box 640, Clarion, PA 16214. Or, call (814) 226-7470.

Former Princesses

The pageant will also be a special anniversary celebration with many former dairy princesses and dairy maids attending the event. To acquaint you with these women, Lancaster Farming asked the women who have served with the program since its inception in 1956, to tell us what has happened to them since their reign. Each reported that their position as the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess or as Miss Milk Maid affected their lives — all for the better.

Although these past princesses no longer wear the crown, they still promote the dairy industry. What are they doing? Where do they live? Here's the latest information on these former princesses.

Susan Coskery Taylor was the first to represent the dairy industry when she was crowned Miss Milk Maid in 1956.

SUSAN COSKERY TAYLOR was selected as the first representative for the dairy industry in 1956. "We were called dairy maids, not dairy princesses," Taylor recalled. "It was a wonderful experience. I lived in the car that year, traveling all over the state. I was treated like royalty."

Taylor came from a Guernsey farm near Allentown. The ... their milk to Freeman's Dairy, the company that sponsored her in the contest.

In 1958, Taylor married and moved to Michigan where she and her husband live on the St. Lawrence Seaway and watch freighters from all over the world. She and her husband have two children and three grandchildren.

Taylor is active in her local theater where she sings and acts. She is studying opera and is choir director for her church.

"I still drink an awful lot of milk. I'm still pushing for milk although it's skim milk and not the 'Golden Guernsey' I've loved. I'm still out there stomping for the farmer," Taylor said.

Sandra Shannon Miller

SANDRA SHANNON MILLER reigned in 1957. From a 135-acre Mercer County farm, Miller, one of six children, said her reign gave her the wonderful opportunity to travel and do things that she would not have been able to do otherwise. "I remember how nice everyone was and how I felt so pampered," Miller said from her home in Idaho.

After her reign, Miller graduated with a home economics degree and a minor in art from Penn State the same year she married. She taught school for about four years before quitting to raise a son and a daughter who now have environmentalist careers in other states. For 11 years, Miller was in marketing and promotion for a retirement village in Masschusetts before moving with her husband to Idaho in 1983.

Miller, now a grandmother, is pursuing a master's degree in art at the Idaho State University. She is active in Amnesty International, Hospices, church, Habitat for Humanity, and a literacy program. She has also become an advocate for a humane approach in the care of animals. "I don't eat beef, veal, or wear leather," she said. "That's probably the biggest transition I've made since my reign."

Sandra Shannon Miller, 1957 Pa. Dairy Princess, now lives in Idaho.

CAROL VIRTUE BRAUND reigned in 1958. As state princess, she competed in national competition and was one of five finalists.

On the humorous side, Braund said, "I remember at one event, I was given a lovely introduction and then was introduced as Miss Milkweed."

She married in 1959, and graduated from Penn State with a degree in home economics. After a stint in Wisconsin, Braund moved to New York where she taught school until she had children and became a full-time homemaker with three children. The youngest, at 18 years, was killed in an automobile accident in 1986.

"I tried being a volunteer queen then decided to go back to school for a nursing degree," Braund said. She did and is now a grad student in a doctorate program at Syracuse University while working full time as assistant director of nursing for a nursing center.

Braund credits her experience as dairy maid for teaching her to be comfortable in dealing with people. "That experience has really helped me in my public relations work as hospital spokesperson and in dealing with people on the job," she said.

"Little did I ever think in that year of milk promotion that I would someday be in the position to defend the use of dairy products to the cardiology section of hospitals," she said.

BEVERLY ROBISON MINOR first represented Washington County before she became the Pennsylvania Dairy Maid in 1959. In 1962, Bev graduated from PSU. She married Sam Minor and raised five children.

"My whole life still revolves around the dairy industry," Minor said. "I'm still promoting the dairy industry every day of my life."

The Minors own a farm, a dairy store, and a restaurant where they market their milk in Washington, Pa.

Minor said that many of the associates she met during her reign remain the best of friends.

"The contacts that I made through the Extension and Department of Agriculture set a good base for my work today," she said.

Minor has worked diligently with the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program since 1973 and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program since 1983.

CAROL ROBINSON BEALS from Centre County wore the state Miss Milkmaid crown in 1960.

"I remember the many good people I met and talked with from that year, and the natural honesty and goodness that people in the farming industry have," she said.

After her reign, Beals became a registered nurse, married, and had two sons before returning to medical school to become a specialist in internal medicine. Now she specializes in rheumatorolgy, that has required 13 years of medical study.

She has her own private practice and clinic named Beals Institute, in Michigan.

"It's challenging work with all ages, and a lot more can be done for rheumatory patients today than most people realize," Beal said.

She credits her public speaking experience with the dairy industry for making it very easy for her to communicate with people of all ages. Beals teaches often at national medical meetings and in countries such as China, Russia, Hungary, and Czechslavakia.

"I'm a great advertisement for the farmer," Beals said. "One of my biggest goals is the treatment of osteoporosis by using dairy products."

Dr. Carol Robinson Beals, 1960 Pa. Dairy Princess, encourages her patients to use dairy products.

ROSA LEE MORSE SMITH from Bradford County acquired the state dairy princess title in 1964. "I was flabbergasted I won. Marilyn Krantz Sejas
1970

MARILYN KRANTZ SEJAS was only 16 in 1970 and the first Lancaster Countian to win the state crown. At the pageant, she was also named Miss Congeniality.

Sejas recalled. "I was thrilled with the achievement. My mother had died when I was 13, and I entered the pageant because I knew that my mother would have been proud of me."

The win helped give Sejas more confidence and helped her develop a winning outlook on life.

One thing she did not learn to do was enjoy the many speeches demanded by her position. "I hated speaking in front of a group," Sejas said. "I still do."

In retrospect, Sejas doesn't believe that she was emotionally prepared at 16 for the the responsibility that was thrust on her. It was stressful for her to combine high school studies with the many appearances she made across the state.

After her reign, Sejas attended college at Millersville University and Hesston College, Kansas. She had an art shop in Paradise and worked part-time as a waitress.

After she helped a Polish engineer defect from Poland, he gave her name to a Russian defector who contacted her. That relationship blossomed into marriage, and the couple settled in California. Sejas received publicity when several magazines such as U.S. News and World Report, printed the couple's story. Sejas is now remarried and has a daughter, 16, and a son, 5.

Sejas said that her experience as dairy princess taught her to consider responsibilites ahead of time. Recently, when considering a career change, Sejas said that she asked herself, "Do I want an exciting, prestigious, and better paying job or do I want something more suited to me?"

Sejas has worked as a model and as a book illustrator. She now works as a Hershey Chocolate sales representative in California. "Sometime, I hope to be transferred to Pennsylvania," Sejas said. "I miss the area. And I miss the dairy farm."

1970 Pa. Dairy Princess Marilyn Sejas with son Matthew.

1971

CAROL CRANDALL GEORGELAS was from Erie County when she wore the state dairy princess banner in 1971.

The latest information indicates that she now lives in Virginia.

Rose Winkelbauer Hoffman
1972

ROSE WINKELBAUER HOFFMAN from Erie County reigned in 1972. In 1978, she graduated from Ediboro University with a B.A. in drama. In 1979, she received her teaching certificate for secondary education. In 1982, she received a degree in English literature. Since then, she teaches English and American literature at Union City High School.

In 1987, Hoffman received a teaching scholarship to Oxford University in England.

Hoffman, who lives in Ediboro, is married and has two children, 20 months and 3 months.

"My reign got me off the farm and broaden my horizons," Hoffman said. "I got to see how city folks live and it's a whole different world."

Marcia Gnagey
1973

MARCIA GNAGEY from Somerset County reigned in 1973.

"I'll never forget that September evening when I was given the privilege of representing the Pennsylvania dairy farmers," Gnagey said. "The experience of meeting people and representing the dairy industry — especially farmers — has given me the confidence to pursue avenues such as rock climbing and international travel."

Marcia graduated from Indiana University of Pennsylvania with a B.S. in nursing and a minor in biology. After two years of critical care nursing, she studied to become a certified registered nurse anesthetist at the University Hospital of Cleveland. She does freelance anesthesia nursing by traveling from place to place and is currently the head of the obstetric anesthesia department at Park Ridge Hospital in Ashville, N.C. and is considering the chief anesthetist position at Dartmont Medical Center.

Gnagey loves independence and adventure and has rock climbed to the top of Grand Teton in Wyoming, back packed among grizzlies north of the Artic Circle, hang glided in the Swiss Alps, and listened to hyenas while sleeping in a two-man tent in Kenja, and photographed sharks while scuba diving in the Great Barrier Reef in Australia, and photographed polar bears in the wild.

"My heart is and always will be with the dairy farmers," Gnagey said. "Although my reign has ceased long ago — I still speak up proudly for the dairy farmers and promote dairy products no matter if I'm in the USA or abroad."

1973 PA. Dairy Princess Marcia Gnagey loves independence and adventure.

DEBRA MILLER BRUBAKER from Dauphin County represented the state in 1974, and is known as the singing dairy princess. She, with her family known as the Singing Millers, made numerous appearances where they sang a promotional song, "Make Mine Milk Today." Miller is the daughter of Pat Miller, coordinator for the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program.

During her reign, Debra appeared on Gary Gears Talk Show on television and was interviewed on Dialing For Dollars Show where she taught Captain Noah to make butter.

Debra married a Lancaster County farmer and is a homemaker and mother of four children in Manheim. She still sings for churches, weddings, and civic organizations.

Miller said that her reign as dairy princess gave her confidence to face challenges and do the best she can.

Charlene Maust Courtney
1975

CHARLENE MAUST COURTNEY from Somerset County reigned in 1975. Because it was the bicentennial year almost every dairy promotion that she participated in that year was associated with the bicentennial. Courtney remembers that a tractor and trailer load of cows was hauled into Philadelphia where the National Holstein Convention was held that year.

It was a great experience. I don't think it's been done since," Courtney said.

Employed by a bank until she married Tom Courtney, Charlene now has three children. The family lives in Berlin. Until recently, Charlene was a full-time homemaker, but is now employed by Berlin School District in the computer labs, where she does desk top publishing, student training, and teaches adult education classes.

Courtney said, "I'll always remember the people I met during my reign. Unfortunately I'm no longer associated with the dairy industry and I miss it. I often wish my children were on a farm to experience the same things, I did growing up."

One thing still remains the same for this past dairy princess. She said, "I still use dairy products."

The Weimers also do crop farming on their Clarion County farm. They have one daughter and are expecting a baby this month.

Weimer said, "I was crowned dairy princess during my first year of college. The experience made be realize what direction I wanted to go with education. I switched from business to agriculture economics. To take a girl out of high school and give her all those opportunities as a dairy princess shows her what she can do. The people I met during my reign helped me to get my first job. Being state dairy princess was a growing experience."

Tamara Cree Christopher

TAMARA CREE CHRISTOPHER in 1983 promoted the dairy industry for Washington-Greene Counties before taking the state title. She was in her freshman year of college when she assumed the state title. She took the year off so that she could devote full time to the dairy princess program.

"My professors believed that once a student quit college, he or she would not come back, but I proved them wrong," Christopher recalled. After her reign, she returned to Waynesburg College and graduated in 1988, the same year she married. Tammy teaches third and fourth graders in Waynesburg and lives in Carmichaels. She and her husband often help on the family dairy farm. She also helps with the county dairy princess program and teaches a workshop on social poise on the state level.

"My reign directed me into education and gave me self confidence during interviews and job observations that I face as a teacher," Christopher said. "I feel good about who I am and what I do."

And, the current dairy princess always visits Christopher's classroom to tell the students about dairy products. "I teach in a rural school and the cows walk in front of the school so I feel right at home," Christopher said.

Tamara Cree Christopher, 1983 Pa. Dairy Princess, and husband Kenneth, enjoy helping on the family farm.

Lynette Loper Pietkiewicz
1984

LYNETTE LOPER PIETKIEWICZ served as Erie County Princess and the state princess in 1984.

"I was so surprised. I didn't think I had a chance to win," Pietkiewicz recalled recently.

Lynette was a high school senior during her reign. She remembers her reign as very challenging and rewarding. "I was terrified the first time I had to speak in front of an audience, but I learned to enjoy it, and I still find it easy to speak in front of groups. I learned more in that year than in a year of college," she said.

Four months ago, Lynette Loper married Christopher Pietkiewicz.

After her reign, Pietkiewicz did attend college. She graduated first in the 1987 class at Saint Vincent Health Center School of Nursing. She is now a registered nurse in the Medical-Cardiac Intensive Care Unit at Hamot Medical Center, and is studying for her BSN at Gannon University. She married in May 1991 and lives in Waterford.

"Being Pennsylvania Dairy Princess made me more assertive, and that has helped me in my job. I learned to be comfortable with people of all ages. It definitely improved my self image," she said.

Occasionally, Pietkiewicz works with dairy promotion in her county and on her parents' farm. She and her husband live on the outskirts of her parents' farm. She said, "We drink milk straight from the tank. We only use butter and real cream — I wouldn't think of doing it any other way. I speak up for the dairy industry whenever I get a chance!"

Elizabeth Heald Moore
1985

ELIZABETH HEALD MOORE said, "Once a dairy princess always a dairy princess. I will never, never stop promoting the dairy industry."

Moore wore the Centre County crown until 1985 when she was crowned for the state honor. Moore was a college sophomore during her reign and although she would not have wanted it any other way, she had to give up some home and personal commitments to do the duties of state dairy princess.

"I learned a lot in my studies at Penn State that complimented what I was doing as state dairy princess," Beth said.

Beth received her bachelor's degree from Penn State in agricultural marketing. For two years, she worked at Monsanto Agricultural Company as a marketing representative in educating others about BST. She married in 1989, lives in Chambersburg, and is currently executive director of the Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living.

"The best thing about being dairy princess was meeting Pennsylvanians," said Moore, who lived in Virginia until she was 16 years old. "It was my first opportunity to get to know the dairy industry and it was a wonderful experience."

She remembers the funniest thing was teaching the Phillies ball team how to milk cows.

She enjoyed being able to share the dairy industry with people from non-dairy backgrounds. Her reign taught her that she enjoyed education and she found that she was good at teaching other people and learning from them.

"Once a dairy princess, always a dairy princess," said 1985 Pa. Dairy Princess Elizabeth Heald Moore shown with her husband, Robert.

Pamela Kindig
1986

PAMELA KINDIG from Lancaster represented the state in 1986. This year, Pam graduated from the University of Delaware with a degree in biological sciences. She is now in the graduate program for physical therapy at the University of Delaware. She expects to receive her master's degree in 1992 and will work for the University Medical Center in Virginia as a physical therapist.

"Being a dairy princess gave me a strong asset in marketing my self. My experience as a spokesperson for the industry is extremely marketable," Kindig said.

"I still do and always will promote dairy nutrition wherever I go."

Rebecca Sonnen
1987

REBECCA SONNEN of Lebanon was crowned the state dairy princess in 1987. "Being part of dairy promotion helped me to relate to people better; not only peers but also younger and older people. It helped prepare me for the unexpected, to think fast on my feet, and take one day at a time," Sonnen said.

After her reign, Becky was named state president of the

Your cows deserve the best

A new aluminum trailer, like this one from E.M. Eby, Inc., looks bright and clean when it comes from the factory. The surprising thing is it stays bright and clean for years — with very little maintenance.

Aluminum offers another big advantage over conventional wood and steel trailer construction. It's lighter — as much as 35% lighter.

Eby trailers are designed strong and built tough. Each trailer is custom made to your specifications.

Proof of durability for Eby trailers is their resale value. At five years old, many sell for as much as 90% of their original price.

Junior Dairy Promoters Train At Mini-Seminar

CLARION (Clarion Co.)—The Ag Arena at Penn State University was the site recently for a one-day training seminar for Pennsylvania dairy maids, ambassadors, and junior dairy representatives.

Forty-seven enthusiastic young promoters accompanied by 28 mothers and/or committee persons from throughout the state spent a busy day learning about Pennsylvania's dairy industry and how to promote its products.

Planned and coordinated by Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., the seminar was conducted by current and former Pennsylvania Dairy Royalty and by coordinators, Mim Kauffman, Mary Herman, and Wanda Yoder, and program director, Jan Harding.

Promoting the sale of dairy products is a large and challenging job which should require the efforts of every dairy related person in the state. It is important to train these young people in product knowledge, public speaking and interview techniques, dairy industry facts and concerns and in how to present themselves to the best advantage. Such early training is designed to give them the inspiration and enthusiasm to continue the job of dairy promotion and agricultural public relations as they continue in high school and advance toward their future careers. It is interesting to note that four of last year's class of Dairy Maids are now serving as their County's Dairy Princess.

The Mini-Seminar for Junior Dairy Promoters was a starting point for many young people in the realm of dairy promotion. Look for them as they assist their County Dairy Princesses and committee persons in the job of promotion in their home counties.

Junior promoters who attended the seminar included, front row, (L to R) Becky Seachrist, Tioga Co.; Elizabeth Seman, Susquehanna Co.; Rachel Reish, Centre Co.; Nicole Harvatine, Susquehanna Co. Second row, (L to R) Janelle Koontz, Bedford Co.; Erin Hersman, Venango Co.; Angela Werley, Berks Co.; Rachel Haagen, Centre Co.; Heather Wood, Tioga Co.; Candy Hitchcock, Warren Co.; Susan Pardoe, Sullivan Co.; Christyn Rossman, Centre Co.; Angie Beck, Clinton Co.; Erin Gummo, Tioga Co.; Cathy Walls, Venango Co.; and Stephanie Gourley, Warren Co. Third row, (L to R) Beth Nebzydoski, Wayne Co.; Charlene Shupp, Wyoming-Lackawanna Co.; Melissa Diehl, Wayne Co.; Katie Sterner, Bucks-Montgomery Co.; Carrie Swanson, Warren Co.; Laura Fitch, Tioga Co.; Shana Raub, Sullivan Co.; Mandy Naugle, Cumberland Co.; Jennifer Dotterer, Clinton Co.; Robin Wells, Venango Co.; Danielle Breaux, Bucks-Montgomery Co.; Renee Kieklak, Erie Co.; and Mindy Loomis, Warren Co. FFA. She took a year off from her studies at Penn State since the position of FFA president required a lot of travel. This summer, Sonnen worked as a Pennsylvania Governor's School assistant for the ag science program. She still found time to help her dad on their 200-acre dairy farm with the cows and field work.

Becky is a junior at Penn State where she is taking a heavy load of 19 credits this semester. She serves as an agricultural advocate with the College of Agriculture where she recruits students for the program.

"My reign opened my eyes to the dairy industry. I knew bits and pieces about the industry before, but, by the end of my reign, the whole puzzle came together. It helped me make up my mind on whether or not I wanted to have a part in the dairy industry — and I definitely do!"

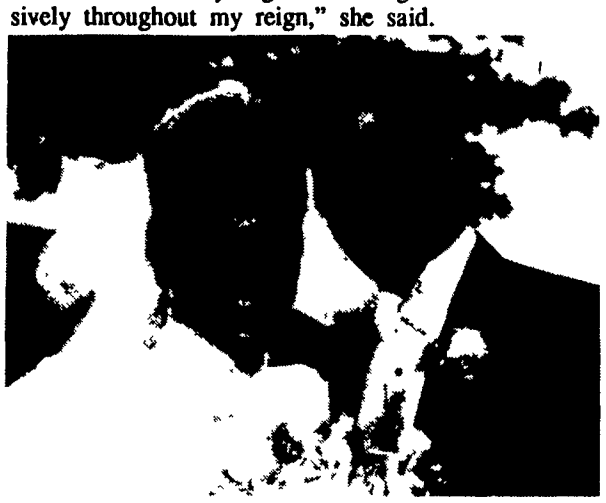
Next summer, Sonnen hopes for an internship in public relations with the American Dairy Association, Hershey Foods or as a breed representative.

Kimberly Bonzo Mayhue
1988

KIMBERLY BONZO MAYHUE represented Beaver-Lawrence Counties before capturing the 1988 state crown. Mayhue finished high school during her reign and graduated from Robert Morris College in December 1990. She married in June 1991 and is employed as an accountant by Chemlawn Services, Inc.

Mayhue said she still treasures all the friendships she made during her reign, and keeps in close contact with many of the people she met through the program.

"I'll always carry the sense of pride in farming that I had somewhat before my reign but that I gained more extensively throughout my reign," she said.



Three months ago, 1988 Pa. Dairy Princess Kimberly Bonzo married Dean Mayhue.

Anne Marie Mitchell
1989

ANNE MARIE MITCHELL ROHRBACH, from Berks County was crowned state dairy princess in 1989. Since her reign she has been working full time on the family farm in addition to being a relief milker for farmers who go on vacation. She also raises small critters such as turkeys and rabbits. She married last month.

"Through my reign I got to know the Lord because of people that I came in contact with. It made me decide I'd rather stay home and raise children than work at a career," Rohrbach said. "The experience also made me feel better about myself and gave me confidence to do things."

Kristin Mentzker
1990

KRISTIN M. METZKER, the current princess from Blair County, graduated from Central High School in the spring and moved to Lancaster. During the summer, she worked part time as a disc jockey for WLAN 97. Now, she is a communications major at Elizabethtown College.

"A year as a dairy princess plays a role in shaping who you are," Metzker said. "Because you're so busy, it teaches you to choose what is most important to you. It's a year of growth and changes you for the good."

Metzker said that she thinks she is the only student who keeps a carton of milk in the refrigerator at college, but she is cheered to see many students drinking milk in the cafteria. "Every beverage available is served there and to see so many choose milk proves the dairy industry must be doing something right," she said.

Pease Farms Shows State's Grand Champion Holstein

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — C. Merle Holme Marlin Rosemare, owned by Lloyd and Denise Pease of Pease Farms and Harold J. Hartt, was selected grand champion and senior champion of the PA Holstein Championship Show held at Penn State's Ag Arena on Sept. 6.

Judge Richard Lewis of Orient, Ohio, selected the 4-year-old Holstein, sired by Loc-Lin-Ma Elevation Marlin, over 210 other entries in the show. The same cow, shown by Denise Pease, placed first in her class at last year's PA Holstein Championship Show as a junior 3-year-old.

"She freshened June 2 and has milked over 100 pounds since then," said Lloyd Pease, co-owner of the champion. The Peases, of Susquehanna, milk 80 cows for a herd average of 22,000 lbs.

Reserve grand champion and reserve champion honors went to Cove Valley Wonders Wish, a senior 2-year-old owned by Rusty and Lorie Russell of Connection Holsteins. This cow, sired by Walkway Chief Mark, was grand champion at the Central PA Championship Show in Huntingdon, and was bred by the State Dairy Princess Kristin Metzker.

Owner/breeder Patrick Carey of Titusville, earned grand champion and senior champion of the junior division by showing Plum-Line Melvin Autumn, sired by Mel-Est Valiant Irose Melvin. This senior 2-year-old was grand champion of the Western Holstein Show in Somerset County.

Reserve grand champion and reserve champion of the youth division went to owner Ty W. Christman of Chambersburg. His 4-year-old Cove-Run Reliance Gloria, bred by Oren Bender, was sired by Wauk-A-Way Fond Reliance.

Earlier in the show, judge Lewis selected JCY Starbuck April, a winter yearling heifer, as junior champion of both the open show and the junior division. The heifer, shown by owner Troy D. Young of Greencastle, was sired by Hanoverhill Starbuck.

Reserve junior champion of the open show went to owner and breeder Glenn E. Bowen, for his fall calf Bowen Vale Southwind Lottie, sired by Southward Bell of Bar Lee.

Reserve junior champion of the junior division went to a winter calf owned and bred by Danielle Sparling. Maple Flat Counselor Dorie was sired by Carnation Counselor ET.

Judge Lewis commended the juniors for the job they did.

Winners at the Pa. Holstein Championship Show can look forward to competing in the Eastern National Holstein Show to be held Sept. 26 in Harrisburg as part of the 1991 All American Dairy Show, September 23-26. Paul King, of Mooreville, W.Va. will be judging the event.

Recognition for receiving the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards went to Gordon and Dorothy Wood of Mansfield who brought more than 11 animals to the competition. The PA Holstein Association presented banners for the awards.

From the left, Kristin Metzker stands with futurity winners Nina and Jim Burdette, and sons Kyle and Justin.

First place for the junior best three females award went to Jim and Nina Burdette of Windy-Knoll-View Holsteins, of Mercersburg.

Wagner Crest Daisy Rotate, a junior 3-year-old, earned for owners Queens-Manor Holsteins of Jamestown, the George M. Knight Junior Total Performance Award. This award combines the cow's placement in the class, the cow's production, and her classification to recognize total performance. Rotate's indexing statistics include 2-00, 267 days, 22,003 pounds of milk, 968 pounds of fat and 792 pounds of protein.

The best animal bred and owned trophy, the produce of dam award, and the dam & daughter award went to Windy-Knoll-View Ultimate Pala, an aged cow. Pala won top honors for owners Jim and Nina Burdette of Mercersburg, at the South Central Holstein Show.

Best animal bred and owned in the junior division went to Patrick Carey of Titusville who exhibited Plum-Line Melvin Autumn, a senior 2-year-old.

Honors for the best three females went to Penn Gate Holsteins of Littlestown.

Windy-Knoll-View Ajet Princess won first place and $853.00 in the futurity competition for James and Nina Burdette. In 1988, 101 animals were entered as calves at $3 per head, and 88 animals had a second payment of $11 per head in 1989. In 1990, 38 animals had a final payment of $20 per head. Thirteen were entered in the 1991 Futurity Show.

Jim and Nina Burdette stand with Windy-Knoll-View Pala, an aged cow which has won a number of trophies for the Burdettes. Here they hold the trophy for having the best bred and owned cow of the state Holstein show. She also won for produce of dam and in the dam and daughter classes.

For all the exhibitors, Ken Raney of the PA Holstein Association said, "It was a good show. Our fall show brings out the best of them and I think they showed well today. As the judge said, some of these animals will stand well at the Eastern National. They've done well for Pennsylvania."

The George M. Knight Junior Total Performance Award is presented to Joe Doeberiener, owner of the top cow ranked by show class placing, milk production, and breed classification. Cindy Hall, Knight's daughter made the presentation. Doeberiener's son, Justin, holds the halter of the cow.

Groundwater Educational Conference Set

WARREN (Warren Co.) — The Pennsylvania Groundwater Policy Education Project is sponsoring a day-long conference on Saturday, October 5.

It will be held at the Venango Campus of Clarion University, Rhoades Lounge, in Oil City. The project is a joint effort of Penn State Cooperative Education Fund.

High quality water is vital to the health and economic well-being of Pennsylvanians, 37 percent of whom depend on groundwater for their drinking water. The conference will focus on education and leadership development for improved groundwater policy-making in Pennsylvania.

Citizens and municipal officials will receive training on groundwater issues and leadership skills that will enable them to more effectively participate in public policy decisions affecting groundwater.

A hydrogeologist, familiar with the local geology, will discuss the specific groundwater situation in northwest Pennsylvania. Information on tools for protecting groundwater will be provided and availability of grants and technical support for local educational efforts will be addressed.

The workshops are open to the public. For more information on the workshop and to register, call Renee Abrams (412) 363-3112 or the league's toll-free number, (800) 692-7281 or your local county extension office.

Howe Family Dominates Chester Co. 4-H Swine Show

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.)— The 1991 Chester County 4-H Swine Show and Sale was held once again at New Holland Sales Stables.

Judge Dave Hartman of Columbia Co. had a challenging evening as 46 individuals and 16 trios were entered.

Grand champion market hog of this year's show went to Sara Howe, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Howe of Downingtown. The 250-pound hog was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $2.75/pound.

The reserve grand champion was exhibited by Vicky Hewitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hewitt of Spring City. The reserve champion weighed 260 pounds and sold to Hatfield Quality Meats for $2/pound.

Champion senior showman was David Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Howe, and reserve champion senior showman was Matt Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stoltzfus of Honeybrook.

Champion junior showman was Conrad Smoker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Smoker of Honeybrook, and reserve champion junior showman was Jonathan Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Howe.

Trophies will be presented to these champion individuals at the annual livestock awards banquet in February, courtesy of the Lancaster-Chester County Pork Producers Council.

David Howe exhibited the grand champion trio. The 710-pound trio sold to New Holland Sales Stables for 90¢/pound. The reserve grand champion trio at a total weight of 705 pounds, exhibited by Sara Howe, was purchased by Downingtown National Bank, Downingtown, for $1/pound.

"This was the best sale we have ever had!" said Titus Beam, leader of the Chester County 4-H Swine Club for nearly 20 years. There were 89 hogs shown and sold with an average sale price of 87¢/pound.

Waltimyer Claims Double Win In York Fair 4-H Steer Show

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — In a tight contest that sent judge Chet Hughes on repeated trips assessing the finalists, Shawn Waltimyer, Airville, claimed both banners in the York Fair's 4-H market steer show.

It marked the first ume that an exhibitor has ever won both champion and reserve places in the popular beef competition, after recent rule changes which allow a 4-H member to exhibit multiple steer entries.

The champion banner went to Waltimyer's 1,210-pound light heavyweight division winner, "Whoopie Pie." "Whoopie" got his unusual name from the small amount of white head markings on his otherwise solid black coat. The meaty, well-muscled, Maine-Anjou cross was bred by Shawn's grandfather, Donald Walter, Airville.

Waltimyer's champion win also earned him the revolving trophy presented by W.D. Angus, York, and a $25 savings bond from the Southcentral Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

Reserve champion honors went to Waltimyer's medium weight division winner, a 1,120-pound Chianina-Angus crossbred.

In the lightweight division runoffs, Ed Livingston, Dover, was named champion over reserve winner Tracey Willwert. Reserve champion medium weight was exhibited by Kevin Grubb and reserve in the light heavyweight classes went to Ed Livingston, Robin Shive, Seven Valleys, exhibited the heavyweight champion, with Suzanne Bishard, York, placing in the reserve spot.

Matt Altobelli, Dover, won a $50 award for special bred and owned steer class sponsored by the Southcentral Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

If The Forage You Chop Is Drought-Stressed.... Test It For Nitrates

Drought-stricken fields of corn, sorghum and legumes are most apt to contain harmful levels of nitrate, particularly those that have been heavily fertilized with manure or nitrogen fertilizer.

Excessive levels of nitrates can cause lower production, reproduction problems or even death.

We are a full service testing laboratory. Contact us at our toll-free number 1-800-659-7542 for price list and sample mailers.

Low Interest Loans Available

YORK (York Co.) — The 1991 severe summer drought has had adverse affects on the crop production in the six-county area serviced by York Farm Credit, ACA.

York Farm Credit officials said they recognize that, due to the drought, many farmers will need to do additional borrowing because of reduced crop sales and additional feed purchases.

Jay V. Rush, president of York Farm Credit, ACA, recently announced a special drought loan program. The program will have an initial interest rate of 8 percent on variable rate loans.

The interest rate may fluctuate according to market rates. The program will be offered for a limited time to farmers of Adams, Cumberland, Franklin, Fulton, Perry and York counties.

"Our Board of Directors, consisting of farmers, felt it important to provide reduced rate working capital purpose loans to farmers who will need to do additional short term borrowing as a result of drought conditions", said Ralph H. McGregor, a York County dairy farmer and Farm Credit director.

To qualify for this program, farmers need only review the effects of the drought on their 1991 crops and cash flow and talk to their Farm Credit loan officer for details of the program. Normal credit qualifications and repayment schedules will apply.

Loan applications are now being taken and must be processed and settled by December 31.

York Farm Credit, ACA presently provides over $138 million in long and short term loans to borrowers in south central Pennsylvania.

York Farm Credit, ACA is affiliated with the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore which is part of the nationwide Farm Credit System.

Lyndon Reiff, right, became champion fitter, showman, and owner of the best market lamb at last year's Solanco Fair. At left, Jill Harnish placed first in junior lfitting and showed the reserve champion market lamb. Judge for the 15th annual sheep show was Dr. Robert Herr, center.

The Solanco Fair
September 18 to 20, 1991

IMMUNITY (RESISTANCE) TO DISEASE

David C. Kradel
MS, MPH, DVM
Extension Veterinarian
Dept. of Veterinary Science

A chick or poult becomes immune or resistant to specific disease agents (bacteria, viruses, and some parasites) in various ways. These types of immunity can be called innate immunity, passive immunity, and active immunity.

Innate Immunity

This type of immunity is a non-specific immunity that a chick may be born with or acquire later.

It results from various substances in the respiratory (trachea, lungs) and digestive (stomach, intestines) systems and on the skin that are detrimental to bacteria, viruses, and bacteria. There is very little that can be done to increase this type of immunity.

Passive Immunity

The chick receives immunity or resistance from the protective substances called antibodies that the chick absorbs from its yolk sac. The yolk sac antibodies come from the hen via the egg yolk.

The amount and types (there is a different antibody against each disease) of these antibodies in the egg yolk and subsequently in the yolk sac and chick depend on the amount of antibodies present in the hen when she laid the egg.

These antibodies break down and disappear over a relatively short period of time. The general rule is that they are decreased by ½ each 7-10 days. Thus, by 21 days of age, only ¼ of the original amount of antibody is present in the chick.

The amount present at birth will help to determine how much is present at 1, 2, and 3 weeks of age. By 2-3 weeks of age, these antibodies that come from the hen via the yolk sac and the temporary immunity (resistance) they produce will be largely gone.

These antibodies are important in protecting the chick prior to the time it can develop its own immunity. Breeder flocks are vaccinated against various diseases so that they will then pass these antibodies on to their chicks via the yolk sac.

Active Immunity

Immunity or resistance develops in growing or mature birds because of exposure to some amount of the disease agent. Examples of exposure would be to bacteria (E. coli), viruses (Rotavirus), or parasites (coccidiosis).

When this exposure occurs, immunity develops because an infection occurs. This infection may be so mild as to not be of any noticeable effect on the bird, the exposure may cause a mild disease to which the bird recovers, or the exposure may cause an infection which will kill the bird.

Which of these three outcomes occurs depends on various things, including level of exposure (how much of the disease agent was the bird exposed to), the disease-producing ability of the disease agent, the possible simultaneous exposure to other disease agents and stress, and the level of immunity or resistance in the bird.

Exposure to a disease agent and subsequent development of immunity may occur either from vaccination or from exposure to the actual disease agent.

Interference With Immunity

Some disease agents themselves will interfere with the development of normal immunity.

The best known of these interfering disease agents is the virus that causes infectious bursal disease (IBD). Some strains of reovirus, the virus of Mareks Disease, some mycoplasma infections, mycotoxins (mold toxins), and others may sometimes interfere with the development of normal immunity.

Nutritional deficiencies and temperature extremes may also be involved. This interference with the development of normal immunity is called immunosuppression.

AFT Applauds More Funds For Farmland Protection

POTTSTOWN (Montgomery Co.) — The American Farmland Trust (AFT) applauds the passage of House Bill 185 that amends the Tax Reform Bill of March 4, 1971. Section 1296 of the Act provides that as of July, 1993, $.02 out of the $.13 increase in the cigarette tax will go to the Agricultural Conservation Easement Purchase Fund.

"This new development will build an enormous amount of public confidence in the Pennsylvania Farmland Protection Program because the program's future longevity has been secured," said AFT Pennsylvania field representative, Ann Orth. Funded by a $100 million bond act in 1987, the Pennsylvania Farmland Protection Program is one of the largest programs of its kind in the county. It protects farmland by purchasing conservation easements on valuable tracts of agricultural land.

AFT President Ralph Grossi commented on the national implications of the passage of the bill. "Pennsylvania's action will serve as a model for other states trying to balance their desire to protect farmland and find a permanent funding source for their programs in these times of budget austerity."

Ebersole Named York Fair 4-H Market Lamb Winner

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A purebred Hampshire wether exhibited by Tabitha Ebersole claimed champion honors in the 4-H market lamb show at the York Fair.

Tabitha, 11, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Ebersole, York R3, and a third-year 4-H lamb exhibitor.

Reserve market lamb title went to Jodi Dutrey, 14, exhibiting her homebred Shropshire/Dorset wether. Jodi is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dutrey, Dallastown, and a 4-H sheep exhibitor for several years.

In her second year of 4-H sheep competition, 10-year-old Jennifer Flinchbaugh snagged the champion pair award with her winning heavyweight pair. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Keeney, York.

Reserve pair went to Dave Myers, Wellsville, with his winning mediumweight entries. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Myers.

Judge Dave Harpster, Boalsburg, praised the quality of the winners and that of the overall large 4-H market lamb show. Nearly 150 entries by York 4-H members competed in the market judging.

Lisa DeHoff, Glen Rock, was named champion in the blocking and grooming contest, in which contenders fit for show untrained lambs taken directly off pasture. She and reserve winner Matt Sellers, Thomasville, earlier won the senior age group division. Julie Kern, York, was first in the intermediate age division and junior group winner was Michael Burrell, Dover.

Dave Myers, Wellsville, earned the senior division and shepherds class champion title, with Jodi Dutrey, Dallastown, the intermediate age and reserve winner. Kelly Dutrey won the junior age shepherd's class.

Tabitha Ebersole was the champion exhibitor in the York Fair 4-H market lamb show and reserve in the open division. Judge Dave Harpster presented the awards.

This 1/16 scale replica of the White 6180 forward fold planter works like the real thing. With 14 miniature, double-acting cylinders it duplicates movements of the full-size planter. 1,337 parts are used to create this precision-made model available through White and New Idea dealers.

Model Planter Works Like Real Thing

COLDWATER, Ohio — Konnie Rutschilling knows this is one of the most fascinating scale models ever built.

"It has working hydraulics that open and close it. Each individual row unit actually moves up and down. The hopper lids even slide on and off. Since we've only built 125 of these models, this is a highly collectable model."

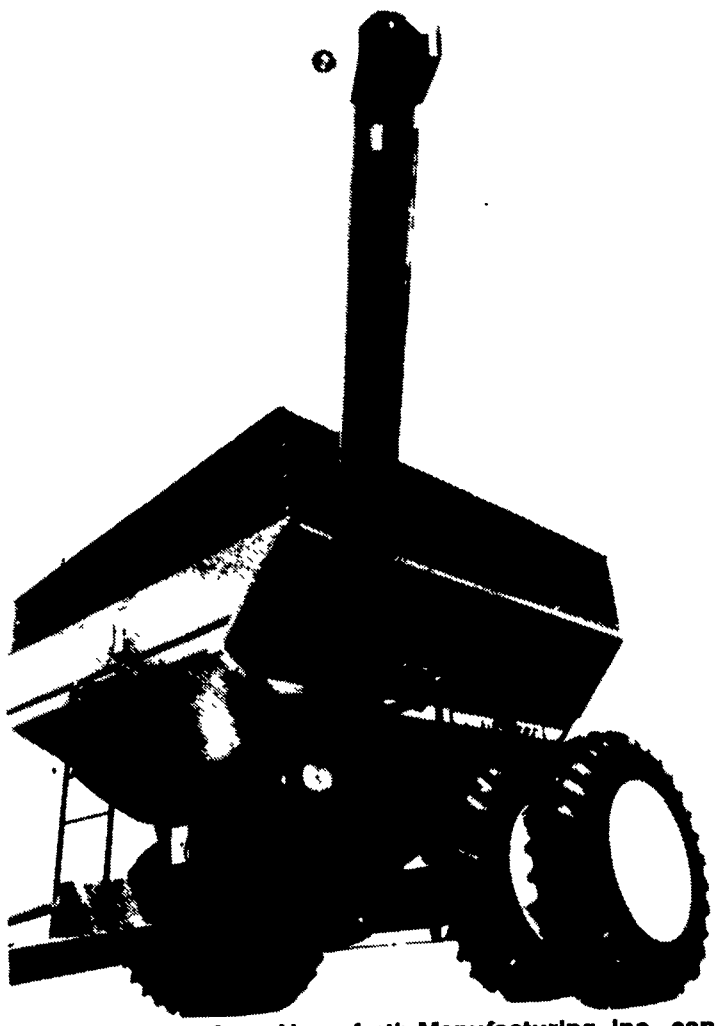
It is a 1/16 version of the White 6100 Series forward fold planter. Rutschilling is marketing the model through Ag ONE, which is the branded parts and supplies line of White-New Idea Farm Equipment Company.

"The unit raises and lowers, folds and unfolds, and its wheels turn from field to transport position. Plus, the detailing is exceptionally acurate," Rutschilling said.

Deters Supercast of Spring Grove, Minnesota has built a limited edition of 125 models. Each is handcrafted zinc aluminum. To make the model work, hydraulic oil is pumped through a system of hoses, cylinders, and over 100 connections.

Each unit comes with a birch hardwood base. A brass plate in the base commemorates introduction of the model and includes the limited edition number.

The planter is available for $995.00. Call (800) 767-3221 for dealer information.



Brent grain carts from Unverferth Manufacturing, Inc., can be ordered with dual wheels as a new option for this fall's harvest. This feature increases flotation, improves grain cart stability, and will provide ridge till farmers with an efficient means to haul grain from field to truck without disturbing ridges.

Dual Wheels On Grain Cart Improve Stability

KALIDA, Ohio - The patented corner auger Brent grain carts from Unverferth Manufacturing, Inc., can be ordered with dual wheels as a new option for this fall's harvest.

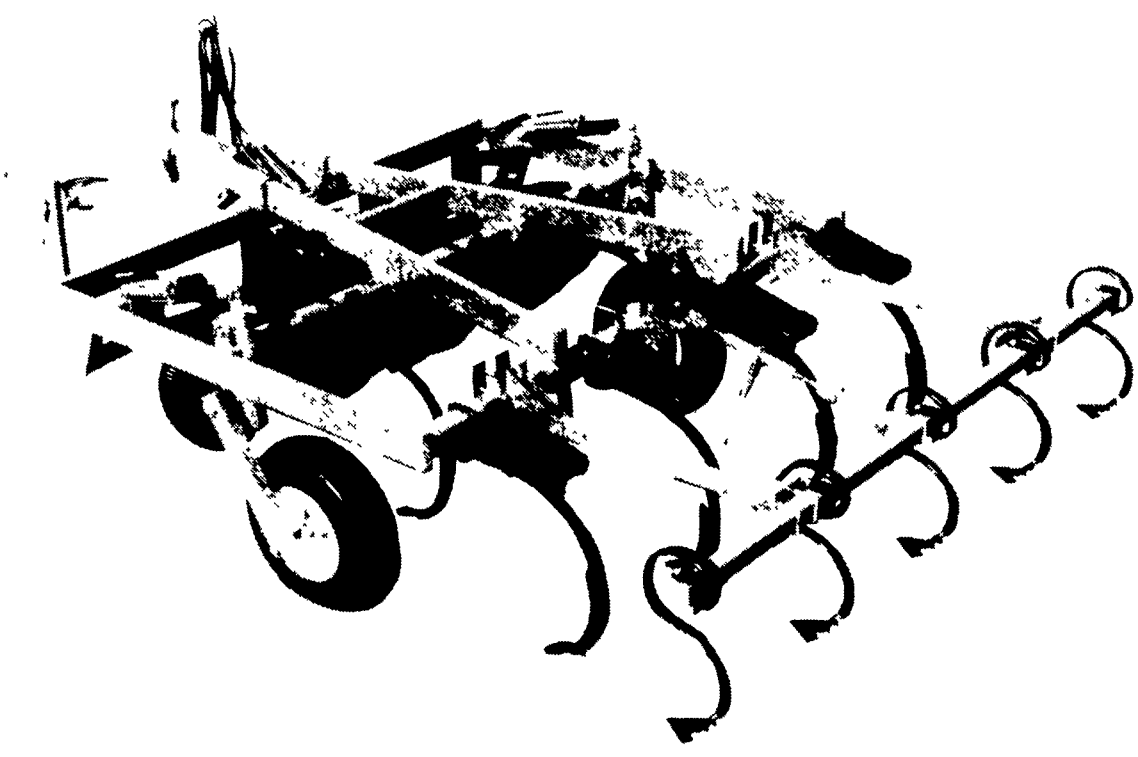
This feature increases flotation, improves grain cart stability, and will provide ridge till farmers with an efficient means to haul grain from field to truck without disturbing ridges. This option is avaibable on Models 472-772 with capacities ranging from 500 to 750 bushels.

In addition to dual wheels, five new tires sizes are available on Brent grain varts for 1991. This increases the total number of wheel/tire packages to as many as 11 on some models, allowing the customer a greater choice in the selection of a package to suit their individual operation.

Also new this fall is a revolutionary auger gearbox. Individual components of this gearbox are nearly 40 percent larger with the total weight of the gearbox being almost 300 percent heavier than conventional gearboxes, setting new standards for durability and dependability in the grain cart industry.

Every Brent grain cart by Unverferth comes standard with a patented corner auger, lights for safe hauling, heavy duty 14-inch computer balanced auger, and optional weigh scales.

For further information, contact Unverferth Manufacturing Co., Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853.



Unverferth's Penetrator® primary tillage tool shatters soil up to a true 12" working depth, resulting in a more productive seed bed that retains moisture, allows deeper fertilizer penetration, and resists erosion.

Tool Shatters Soil To 12-Inch Depth

KALIDA, Ohio — The Penetrator® primary tool from Unverferth Manufacturing Company, Inc. shatters soil up to a true 12" working depth, resulting in a more productive seed bed that retains moisture, allows deeper fertilizer penetration, and resists erosion.

Features like a beefy edge-bent shank design, adjustable 800 pound to 1200 pound shank spring pressure settings, and 15 to 40 feet of solid steel frame gets you in the ground and keeps you there.

The rugged shanks together with choice of shovels shatter and crumble the soil while mixing and incorporating as much residue as required to meet individual SCS program guidelines. The coulters provide complete cutting in heavy trash and rough terrain.

Each spring-loaded, pivoting coulter gang walks over and around obstructions, following high contours independently for more effective trash cutting and reduced breakage.

The Penetrator's extended frame, 20" underframe clearance, top mounted lift cylinders, and extra wide coulter scrapers insure superior trash flow. Coulter gangs are hydraulically raised and lowered from a solid-steel rock shaft. Other features include adjustable hitch and screw-type jack. An easy-mount S-tine leveler is optional.

The Penetrator is availavle with 7,9.11, or 13 shanks with 15" spacing and in working widths from 8'9" to 16'3".

For more information or literature, contact Unverferth Manufacturing Co., Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853, (800) 322-6301, (419) 532-3121.

Mower-Conditioner Cuts In 12-Foot Width

COLDWATER, Ohio — White-New Idea Equipment Company has added a new model to its line of mowing equipment utilizing advanced disc cutting technology.

The 5212 disc mower-conditioner, offering an 11-foot, nine-inch cutting width, answers a need by North American farmers and ranchers for wide, high-speed cutting.

The cut of the 5212 is the widest on a desc mower-conditioner today. Discs spin at nearly 3,000 rpm. That, combined with the wide cut, means the user can mow in less time. The wide cut also puts more crop in the windrow for more efficient harvesting.

The 5212 employs the same disc cutting technology as the other disc mowing equipment marketed with the New Idea brand name. The New Idea cutterbar is a series of self-contained cutting units and independent spacer sections bolted together. Each self-contained cutting unit holds gears, bearings, and lubricant. Daily fluid checks are not necessary since lubrication is encased in each cutting unit. This provides consistent lubrication, even when cutting at extreme angles.

The shaft-driven cutterbar absorbs normal shock which greatly reduces the chance of multiple gear drive failure. A single direct-drive gear box powers all working components.

FARM MANAGEMENT

FARMING WITH FAMILY RULES

Alan W. Strock
Farm Management Agent

Farming with family is frequently at best a problem. Emotions, financial pressures, and personal relationships are all heightened when dealing with family. This article discusses ways to minimize family problems and to aid in the smooth operation and transfer of your farm family business.

In the article "One Family Undivided" by Pam Henderson, from the June/July 1991 issue of "Farm Journal" magazine, she discusses the "Ten Commandments For Farming Together."

The following is based on those 10 commandments.

Bakers Dozen of Farming With Family Rules:

1. Experience off-farm employment before coming home to the family farm. The incoming partner can then make a conscious-informed decision to return. If needed, they can also fall back on prior work experience. I have seen too many young farmers that do nothing but complain because they simply haven't experienced how the "other half" lives. The incoming partner will then have experienced bosses other than their parents. Skills gained during off-farm employment will also benefit the business.

2. Consider a six month to two years trial period apprenticeship before entering a legal binding relationship. This allows all parties to practice their communication skills and practice being a partner and to evaluate the business and their role in it.

3. Admit family members into the business based on ability to contribute to the business, not just because they are family. Make sure that wages and draws are commensurate with ability and time invested in the business. The business can't become a haven for incompetent and/or overpaid family members.

4. Don't burden the farm with more family members or employees than it can support. Generally, at least 40 cows or 100 sows are needed to support a family. The business should supply at least $24,000 for living expenses per family unit.

5. Don't think a change in business structure or relationship or through persistence on your part that someone's personality or business style will change. Family members must first get along well at home before they can get along in business.

6. Develop written job descriptions and responsibilities. Give the incoming partner authority to make changes and then hold them responsible. Be sure if authority is given that you also give total control and responsibility. The younger generation must be given the opportunity to fail with a flair or succeed on their own.

7. Develop written, not oral, business agreements, such as a partnership, joint venture agreement, rental agreement, mortgage or other loan, or family security agreement. It is easier to solve problems before they arise than in the heat of a battle when everyone is looking out for their own interests. View the agreements as an insurance policy against actions that could destroy the business and the family. The agreements should provide exit provisions that protect all parties.

8. Develop a written formal job performance evaluation tool. Family members especially need to know what is expected of them and how their performance will be evaluated.

9. Communicate regularly and openly. I suggest that all couples, including spouses, at least once a month eat at a restaurant or other neutral spot and talk out differences and farm strategic planning issues.

10. Make sure that correction is balanced with praise. Family members must learn to praise their children or parents. It may be very difficult, but it is a real key to keeping the younger generation motivated and interested in the farm. Constant criticism without any praise will surely crush a person's spirit. Remember praise and financial rewards will motivate people more than constant criticism. Family members must learn to be open with each other and share hurt feelings, unmet expectations, lack of management responsibilities, and the like.

11. Discuss farm finances frankly. Keep the books open so that if income margins become minimal or the risk increases, both generations may carefully evaluate their positions and goals. Calculate a cash flow statement for all family members, so the younger generation may accumulate equity without a large cash outlay.

12. Allow for time off, vacations, holidays, and legitimate extracurricular activities and interests. Farmer burnout exists as much as white collar worker burnout. Allow time to "escape" the family and have fellowship with other friends.

13. Be sure to ask for outside assistance. An outside mediator, educator, or counselor can help families sort through the myriad of details and sensitive issues surrounding transitions.

Contact me at Chester or Lancaster County Cooperative Extension for help in the areas of estate planning, partnership formation, or other ideas on how to involve family members in the business.

In summary, I believe that lack of communication, along with the father retaining total control of the business, accounts for at least 80 percent of all failed family farm situations. So communicate or relationships will degenerate.

Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster

Delaware Holds Days

ANNANDALE, N.J. — The Delaware Valley Old Time Power and Equipment Association is holding its 14th Annual Days of the Past event Sept. 21 and Sept. 22 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., each day, at Washington Crossing State Park.

The park is located at Route 579 and Church Road in Titusville.

Scheduled are working displays of wood cutting, shingle making, corn shelling, etc. Also, a parade of antique tractors, cars and farm equipment is to be held each day.

This year, the organizers will not hold a garden tractor pulling contest, however, a pedal tractor pulling contest for youth is to be held.

In addition, a flea market is also scheduled.

Among the displays, a Lane 56-inch sawmill restored by club members will be in operation. The sawmill is to be powered by a 1913 32-horsepower Frick steam traction engine, which is owned by Coles Roberts.

In addition, the club's 1918 Avery gas tractor is to be used for a display on threshing wheat.

There's also to be a museum set up in the park barn displaying antique household items, advertising signs and literature and small, farm-related items.

New Jersey exhibitors are welcome.

Through this program, qualified Lehigh County farmland owners can apply to sell their development rights to the commonwealth and county. Agricultural conservation easements are placed on the land, perpetually protecting the land from nonfarm development.

To date, Lehigh County has received state approval for the preservation of three farms totaling 427 acres. Eight county landowners have accepted conservation easement purchase offers from the Lehigh County Agricultural Land Preservation Board ranging from $1,700 to $3,400 per acre.

The deadline for submitting an application for the second 1991 funding round is Monday, Sept. 30. Contact Jeff Zehr at (215) 391-9583 for more information and an application form.

Angus Heifer, Chianina Bull Take York Fair Supreme Titles

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — The offspring of a former 4-H champion won the York Fair supreme female title during open class beef breed competition held last weekend.

"Bacquel", the homebred Angus entry of Cathy Shive, Seven Valleys, bested six other breed champions for the coveted supreme award. The summer calf, born May 1990, was bred by Cathy from her former 4-H champion Angus heifer.

A York county 4-H "graduate," Cathy is studying business and finance at York College. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Shive and works closely with the family's purebred Angus herd.

Supreme bull honors of the show went to Moving "M" Farm, Warriors Mark, with their champion Chianina.

Aptly named "M Whiteman," the glistening white 2-year-old snagged the supreme title on his first show. The win was a pleasing repeat performance for owners Larry and Donna Moore, who exhibited Whiteman's sire to York's supreme honors in 1989.

Santa Gertrudis breed honors for both champion bull and heifer were won by Gene and Linda Moose, Gettysburg. The Moose family also claimed the reserve champion bull title. Junior and reserve champion heifer honors went to Rib-Eye Ranch of Columbia.

Joyce Stough's winning 4-H Simmental heifer claimed similar honors in the open show, over the reserve champion shown by Hutters Springhill Farm, Jonestown. Junior and reserve champion heifers were both exhibited by Lisa Hoover, Mt. Wolf. Champion bull was a massive, one-ton, 63-inch-tall entry of K&K Cattle Company of Fleetwood, a recent New York state fair division winner. In the reserve champion bull spot was Triple L Farm, Abbottstown.

Maple Springs Farm of York Springs snagged the Hereford open class female title, with a homebred fresh off a division win at Maryland State Fair. Taking reserve champion Hereford female was Green Leaf Farm. Hereford bull honors went to the Altobelli family's Paradise Farm, exhibiting their homebred December youngster at his first show. In the reserve bull placing was DRS Polled Herefords of Wellsville.

Charolais champion female title went to Ray and Mary Grimes' South Mountain Farms, with a heifer also repeating prior wins at Shippensburg and South Mountain contests. The Jack Myers family's Dunkard Valley Farms claimed the reserve champion female award. Also repeating an earlier win at Shippensburg was the Charolais champion bull, exhibited by Dale and Donna Byers, Biglerville. York County 4-Her Orcen Little of Felton got the reserve champion bull rosette.

Finishing behind Cathy Shive's supreme in the Angus breed female classes was Wellsville 4-H member Sandra Eisenhour, taking the reserve title. Angus bull honors were split by Jay Rishel, Seven Valleys, exhibiting the champion, and Orcen Little, taking reserve.

Shawn Waltimyer, Airville, topped the Chianina female classes with his winning, homebred 4-H entry. Placing in the reserve champion spot was Moving "M" Farm, Warriors Mark. Moving "M"'s winning bull, which took the supreme title, bested its own herdmate which won the reserve honor.

Lenape Limousin, Telford, earned both champion bull and female awards in the Limousin competition. The 16-month-old bull earlier won shows in both New York and West Virginia for owner Harris Mosher. Both reserve placings went to Brian Linebaugh, Abbottstown.

Judge for the open class beef show was Dough McIntire, White Post, Virginia. A partial list of winners follows:

Think In Terms Of Casein For Future Dairy Production

GEORGE F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK Del. — The debate about changing the milk payment basis from fat contents and fat differentials to something more in tune with the modern market has persisted in the dairy industry since the 1960s.

But after all these years, we still have not reached agreement on what to change it to: solids-not-fat contents, protein contents, cheese yield, or what?

Of course, solids-not-fat is almost half lactose, which isn't the most desirable milk ingredient to emphasize or to pay for. Protein is appealing to the consumer, but consumers generally do not realize that this is an umbrella term for many components in milk that have only one item in common — nitrogen content.

There are more than a dozen non-protein nitrogen compounds in milk besides lactoglobulin, lactalbumin, blood serum protein, immunoglobulin, and casein, and each of these, especially casein, represents a family of many different species.

They are different because they are made up of many amino acids that can vary genetically in sequence, in number and in kind, all causing different nutritional properties for the consumer and the processor.

For example, there are four major species of casein (called alpha, beta, kappa and lambda, depending on their amino acid make-up) which given in different proportions account for what we eventually call cheese yield.

All the other proteins and non-protein-nitrogen compounds in milk don't go into cheese, usually. These are useless and wasted most of the time, unless put into production of Norwegian brown cheese or Italian ricotta, which contain some of these so-called "whey" proteins.

Some whey proteins are used in secondary byproduct utilization such as in soft drinks, animal feeds, bakery products and plastics.

To add even more variety to each of these species, each consists of different genetic strains: A, B, C, D, again depending on their amino acid make-up.

The only thing these strains and species have in common is that all caseins go into making cheese, and all the others don't.

However, the species and strains within the casein are critical when it comes to how much cheese yield to expect and what processing and nutritional properties they have.

In many studies here at the University of Delaware, we have found that both genetic make-up of casein strains and the total amount of all caseins combined vary under conditions of the cow's management. The best barometer for this is the so-called somatic cell count.

A cow with a healthy udder may have as much as 80 percent casein in her total milk-protein content,

(Turn to Page D14)

Think In Terms Of Casein

but as soon as she has some subclinical (or worse, clinical) mastitis, her casein content drops to as low as 50 percent.

The rest of her milk protein content is now useless, but it contains more whey proteins, thus the cheese yield is drastically reduced.

In the case of subclinical milk, when the milk looks normal and if the cow is not treated, this milk is still acceptable for fluid consumption, but for the cheese maker, it would mean a considerably lower cheese yield and loss.

The total protein test of milk would not indicate this unless it had been tested for casein instead of total protein, or indirectly, if it had been tested for somatic cell counts, which frequently correlate in a negative way with casein contents in total protein.

The different genetic strains of casein also correlate with cheese yield, processing quality and nutritional differences.

Very new research, not only here at Delaware, but around the world, has begun to show this.

For example, red and white Holsteins may have different amounts of kappa casein A and B than black and white Holsteins, to say nothing of the other breeds or species of ruminants — Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Ayrshire, Jersey, Simmental, Zebu, Buffalo, goats, sheep, etc.

In the North American black and white Holstein population, there is a predominance of kappa casein A over B. However, it has been found that the B strain would be more desirable because it is related to higher casein content, higher cheese yield, more favorable cheese composition and better coagulating properties in terms of clotting time and curd firmness.

So what's the bottom line? Milk income at the farm level is very much influenced by the percentage of fluid milk market in this metropolitan area. So there is the temptation not to worry about cheese yield.

However, what we in the industry must realize is that every pound of cheese produced in Wisconsin and Minnesota influences our milk price here even more. If there is a surplus of cheese in the Wisconsin-Minnesota region, if their sales are down, then soon the milk price here in the Northeast and in the mid-Atlantic region goes down.

If we only could help advertize and sell more Wisconsin-Minnesota cheese, our milk price here would soon be boosted more than by anything else.

Ultimately, we all have a stake in what cheese yield comes from milk, how it is influenced by genetics, how it is affected by mastitis, etc., how it is measured and how it is paid for.

When we think of the future of our cows and our dairy farms, perhaps we should think in terms of cheese, or better yet, casein.

Livestock Notes

FDA Warns Against Use Of Clenbuterol

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and the Food Safety and Inspection Service (FSIS) have determined an illegal veterinary drug, clenbuterol, is being used to increase muscle mass in meat producing show animals such as cattle, pigs and sheep. The FSIS and the FDA are concerned about possible adverse health effects such as increased heart rate, muscular tremors, headache, nausea, fever and chills in people who might consumer food from animals treated with this drug.

Given the increased awareness of this problem, be assured some animals at livestock shows will be urine tested for clenbuterol in the near future. If an animal tests positive for the drug, the carcass will be retained by the FDA for further testing. If the carcass tests positive for the drug, it will be condemned. There could be penalties for the owner of the animal.

Use only those drugs that are approved for sheep or are prescribed by your veterinarian.

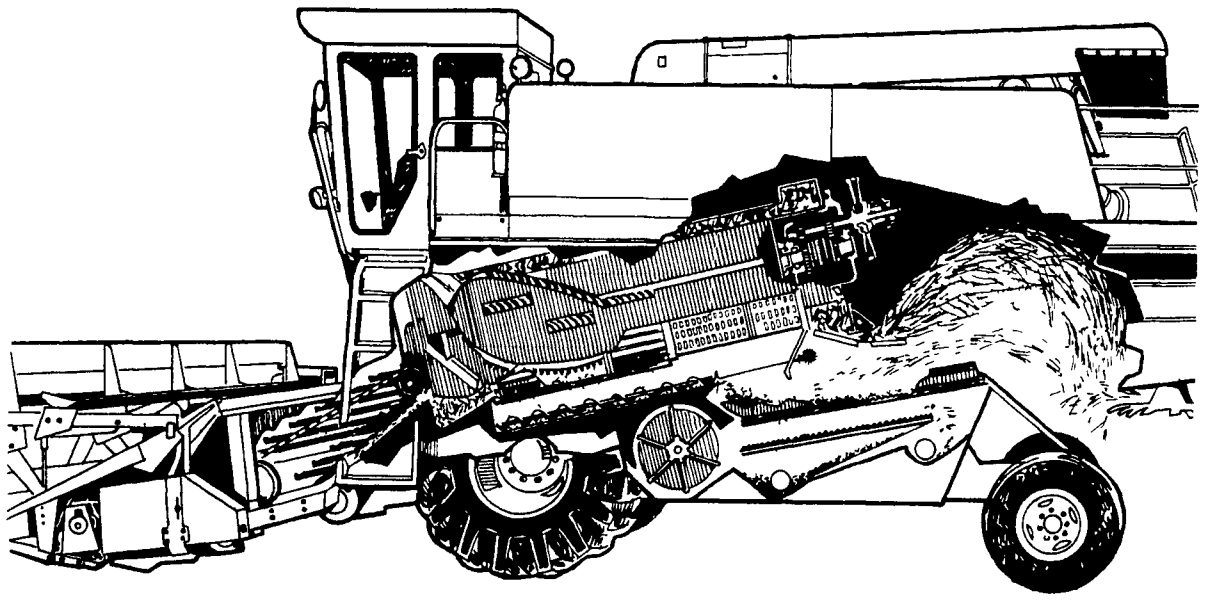
The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

1. FEWER MOVING PARTS...

2. HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN...

3. ALL CROP VERSATILITY...



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

4. HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For thirteen years Hoober's 5 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

AUTHORIZED SERVICE & ENGINE DISTRIBUTOR

This twin 20 hp is becoming very popular for hay balers and other applications traditionally equipped with 2 cylinder Wisc. engines and can also replace the older 4 cylinder engines on some applications.

This engine has been in use on hay balers for over 10 years and is doing a very good job. We can also mount Wisc. clutches or reductions on it for some applications. Fuel efficiency is very good.

Buy now while we still have this heavy duty engine. New model coming next year.

FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY

The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.'

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

MAXIMIZER™ COMBINES DELIVER ON THEIR PROMISE. EVEN WHEN CONDITIONS AREN'T PROMISING

"Bigger capacity Cleaner grain and more of it." That's what new-technology Maximizer combines promise. And they deliver in all harvest conditions—good, bad and indifferent.

Threshing capacity is thorough and gentle with a larger slower-speed cylinder and large concave area. Samples are cleaner, thanks to the Quadra-Flo™ system with its precleaner, four high velocity fans, chaffer and sieve.

Stop in. You'll see that the total feature combination, along with traditional John Deere reliability and dealer service, gives you more reason than ever to go Maximizer. That's a promise.

IN STOCK, READY TO GO! A MAXIMIZER WITH THE HORSEPOWER YOU NEED.

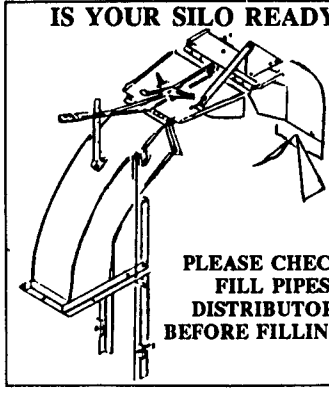
S & S SILO SERVICE

ATTENTION FARMERS
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete
STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.
